TWO GUNMEN HOLD UP TROLLEY

Today

Mexico's Great Day.
King George's 21st Year.
Now the Day Is Over.
Mr. Mellon Speaks.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

YESTERDAY, MAY 5, Cinco de Mayo, good Mexicans celebrated the victory that freed their country forever from European control.

Patriotic Mexicans (no nation is more patriotic) lifted their glasses in gratitude to the memory of the French defeat, establishing the fact that Mexico is for Mexicans.

Mexico's May 5 should make real Americans thoughtful, now that so many Americans seem eager to discard George Washington's teachings and join the European League of Nations or World Court for instructions as to the management of the United States.

Mexicans will never make that mistake.

WHILE THE Mexicans were celebrating their important holiday, King George of England was celebrating the end of his twenty-first year as king. Only 17 English kings and queens have remained longer than 21 years on the throne.

King George has now equaled the term of William the Conqueror. His has been a different term. The Conqueror ruled. He suppressed many small kingdoms to make a big one, wiped out villages and farms to create vast deer parks.

Long after his death, late as the time of Henry the Second, an English workman moving from one parish to another in search of a job, without permission, was branded on his flesh with a red hot iron.

KING GEORGE has lived to see a workman, formerly in the coal mines, prime minister of England, and writing the speeches that the King delivers, "the address from the throne."

We may see changes as great here, we may even see the citizens themselves running the country, something we haven't seen yet.

GEORGE F. BAKER, one of the most powerful workers in American business and finance, was buried yesterday. "Abide With Me" was sung and "Now the Day Is Over."

Men of power, in the world that interested Mr. Baker, were there, Senator Dwight W. Morrow, just back from Sicily; Charles E. Mitchell, chairman of the National City Bank; Charles M. Schwab, Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes. There were also railroad presidents, and their conversation about business after the funeral was none too cheerful.

SOME THAT were too optimistic at the beginning of our slump are now taking it too solemnly, as though the doctor had said:

"You have an inoperable cancer."

We have, at the worst, a case of financial measles.

Mr. B. Forman, of Rochester, N. Y., who deals directly and successfully with the people in business, says:

"We must take things as they come, working the harder when they don't come exactly as we want them. The man who is always a little hungry is healthier than the man who is never hungry. We have been stuffed with prosperity, having too much. Thinking and hard work will do us good."

SECRETARY MELLON, whose specialty is NOT talking, yesterday talked about business, for the first time since October, 1929, at a luncheon given to foreign bankers by American bankers.

You should read his speech in the newspapers.

"We can't be cured by any quick and easy methods, or at anybody else's expense, and we ought to realize it.

"The world is passing through one of the most extensive depressions it has ever known.

"We should not lose our sense of perspective; this crisis is not unprecedented, it is one of those transition stages that entail drastic and far-reaching economic readjustments. Those readjustments are taking place all over the world now.

"They will continue until a balance has been restored.

"Depression follows the war and is its result, as the depression of 1873 was the result of the Civil War." (That has often been stated in this column.)

MR. MELLON doesn't believe in any "quick or spectacular remedies for the ills from which the world is suffering."

On the other hand, he doesn't believe there is "anything fundamentally wrong with the social system under which we have achieved a degree of well-being unprecedented in history."

The Secretary evidently doesn't believe that we need to borrow ideas from Russia.

"Capitalism, or whatever name may be applied to it, has its defects, but is still in its infancy."

And:

"It has produced an abundance of food and clothing and all the necessities of life."

His suggestion is, give it time.

"THE STANDARD of living must be maintained at all costs."

"Problems must be solved by individual initiative, and not by surrendering the management of business and industry to government or any board or group."

That seems to be a slap for the Farm Board.

There is nothing to be discouraged about, says the Secretary. On the other hand, he

MISS CASH, GET CHECKS ON B. & L. OFFICER

Force Motorman to Stop Car on Hill Top, Flee; Police Warned Too Late

Two gunmen on a street car held up Charles Schafer, 76, treasurer of the Lyman Building and Loan Association, at noon today, took $5,258.91 in checks and escaped. They overlooked $2,002 in cash.

The holdup took place at Mt. Oliver street, near Brownsville road, on the Hill Top. The men left the car and fled in an automobile, driven by a third member of the party.

South Side and Mt. Washington police, notified of a likely holdup, were moving to the scene from two directions as a dozen passengers, several of them women, watched one bandit swiftly rifle Schafer's pocket, while the other held a revolver on the operator of the one-man car, Harry Shook, of 146 Jucunda street.

TELLS OF HOLDUP

A half hour after the holdup Schafer, who was justice of peace of old St. Clair Borough for 33 years, chuckled as he told about it with obvious enjoyment:

"Every Wednesday I go to the bank with the deposits—the Hilltop Savings and Trust Company. I got on the car today at the usual stop—Fernleaf and Arlington—which is opposite our office. They tell me the two robbers got on at the same stop.

2 NAVAL PILOTS DIE IN CRASH

LOS ANGELES, May 6.—(INS.)—In the wreckage of their San Diego-to-Oakland air mail plane the bodies of Pilotes Arthur Starbuck and C. R. Parmalee were found today by rescue workers.

Their plane became lost in a heavy fog near the United Airport at Burbank at 11:15 o'clock last night. It was believed to have crashed shortly afterward. It did not catch on fire and the large mail cargo was found intact.

The airplane, badly "cracked up," was sighted by Search Pilot E. L. Remlin early today. Three hours later rescue parties located the plane and the bodies in an isolated area in the hills near Roscoe, eight miles from the airport.

U. S. Atty. Graham To Enter Hospital

United States District Attorney Louis E. Graham was to be taken to Presbyterian Hospital this afternoon from his home in Beaver. He had been confined to his home since Monday, suffering from intestinal trouble. During his stay in the hospital, First Assistant District Attorney James I. Marsh will be in charge of the office.

DO-X Set to Start Ocean Hop Tonight

RIO DE JANEIRO, May 6.—(INS.)—The German seaplane DO-X, which has been making short flights along the African Coast, will hop off from Bolama, Portuguese Guinea, for South America tonight if weather conditions are good, advices received here indicate.

STRAY BULLET WOUNDS GIRL

Shirley, 12

Last night while carrying her 9-month-old brother, Carl, in Home street, Homeville, Shirley was shot in the leg by a stray bullet, and today, contemplating her injury, was principally concerned because she must remain out of school.

Despite her wound, which forced her to drop to her knees, Shirley clung to her younger brother and carried him more than two blocks away.

A physician summoned to the Thomas home, was to take the girl to a hospital today in an attempt to locate the bullet. It is believed that the bullet was a stray fired by boys.

Spain's Royal Exiles Deny Plan to Move

FONTAINEBLEAU, France, May 6.—(AP.)—A report from Prague that Alfonso de Bourbon and the royal family were going to take up residences in the Slovakian chateau of Count Zamoiski, a relative, was denied today by attendants of the household. The family intends to stay here indefinitely, it was said.

Clocks on Standard Time Rouse Armstrong's Ire

In deference to legal requirements that recognize only eastern standard time, clocks in the Courthouse have not been moved ahead an hour in conformity with time pieces in other places that observe daylight saving time.

The situation evidently has become irksome to County Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong, for he has ordered his secretary, Roy Walter, to:

"Have the clocks in my office and the conference room where public meetings are held set the same as the clocks we go to bed by and get up by."

GRAF TO MEET WILKINS IN ARCTIC

Zeppelin Makes Rendezvous With Submarine at Pole in July; Lady Hay in Party

By WALTER DIETZEL
International News Service.

MUNICH, May 6. — The German Graf Zeppelin, carrying a complement of 45 persons, will fly to the North Pole in July of this year to keep the strangest rendezvous probably ever suggested in the history of man's exploring of the world, Dr. Hugo Eckener, grizzled commander of the Graf, announced today.

DR. ECKENER

Capt. Eckener on the Graf Zeppelin bridge.

The rendezvous will be with the specially equipped submarine Nautilus, in which Sir Hubert Wilkins, noted explorer, proposes to reach the North Pole by navigating under the polar icecap.

The two strange craft, representing opposite extremes in travel, will meet at or near the pole about the middle of July, Dr. Eckener said. The Graf plans to anchor on the icecap, and carries scientific equipment, ice sledges, boats and other materials for making extensive surveys in the vicinity.

Dr. Eckener announced that the flight is being made in association with the Hearst newspapers. Karl von Weigand, chief foreign correspondent of the Hearst newspapers, and Lady Grace Drummond Hay, will make the flight and will report it, Dr. Eckener said. The announcement stated:

"The express purpose of the flight is to keep a rendezvous at or near the North Pole with Sir Hubert Wilkins' submarine Nautilus."

U. S. Steel Near 110; New Low

NEW YORK, May 6.—Heavy selling of United States Steel common in early trading today forced that stock down to around $110 a share, lowest since 1924. Only a few other stocks were forced lower, while the general market forged ahead doggedly under the influence of strong support in Westinghouse, Vanadium, Auburn.

Just above 110 Steel encountered buying orders which have been awaiting that figure for some time. Strong efforts to force it through that level were unavailing up to the fourth hour.

SHOT BY SNIPER, JOHNSTOWN GIRL DIES

Death Spurs Cleveland Hunt For Shooting Motorist; Second Victim Recovering

CLEVELAND, May 6.—(AP.)—Louise Gaudig, 17, of Johnstown, Pa., who was shot down as she was walking home with a girl companion here late Monday night, died early today.

Miss Gaudig had been unconscious since the shooting and did not recognize her mother, who came from Johnstown yesterday.

She was shot in the head by a man who drove past in an automobile as she and Miss Olive Desmond, a cousin, were returning to the Desmond home after purchasing food. The gunman fired without warning. Miss Desmond said. A delicate brain operation and a blood transfusion failed to save the girl's life.

DEMENTED MAN HELD

Another girl, Miss Geraldine E. Marko, was shot in similar fashion the same night, but was not hurt seriously. A week ago Mrs. Nina Palagye, 36, was shot by a passing motorist.

Police, at a loss for a motive for the shootings, today held a man they said was demented. He was arrested not far from the place where Miss Gaudig was shot. His landlady said a .32 caliber gun she owned had disappeared and police reported the suspect was unable to give a coherent account of his movements.

Sir Alan Revives An Ancient and Painful Subject

—By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER—

Sir Alan Anderson wins today's perforated aquarium with his suggestion to cancel war debts.

Where has Sir Alan been all this time? There's been a lily on that subject for the last 10 years.

Sir Alan spoke before the I. C. C. C. in Washington. It's a perfect recipe because it calls for no ingredients.

We've been using Mother Hubbard's commutation ticket to the cupboard since 1920.

There was a time when we thought we might collect. But it was while listening to Rudy Vallee crooning.

Hope and interest deferred maketh the heart sick. And when your heart is sick, your liver is only around the corner.

Which is almost a census of the nation because they're all small now. But there's another suggestion that arrives after the oysters have been shucked.

If Mr. Traylor had warned us in 1928, we might have been holding onto a strap when the Wall street express took the big curve in 1929.

Although we have all gone down for the third time, we still thank Mr. Traylor for his postponed swimming lessons.

TELLS OF SLAIN GIRL'S PAST

SAN DIEGO, Cal., May 6.—(INS.)—The grief-stricken mother of Miss Hazel Bradshaw, 22, who was stabbed to death here, today told of the early days of her daughter. She said:

"Hazel was born on a farm a few miles north of Omar, W. Va. When she was five years old we moved to Omar and Hazel went to school there. She had two years in high school at Logan, the county seat, and part of another year of schooling after we came to San Diego."

Hazel's father was a timber cruiser and a lumber scaler. He is now 71 and nearly blind. Bobby, a younger sister of Hazel, employed at a refreshment stand here, is the sole support of the family.

Hazel's mother said that her daughter had always received attentions from men, but that she sought to repel them rather than encourage them.

Roosevelt Sailing Tonight for Paris

NEW YORK, May 6.—(INS.)—Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt will sail tonight for Paris, where his mother is ill.

Late today he will announce the members of the Water Power Authority, which will supervise hydro-electric power development on the St. Lawrence River.

BILL REVIVAL FAILS IN HOUSE

Reconsideration of Schwartz Measure Blocked; Backers Take Up Denning Plan

HARRISBURG, May 6.—The House today defeated an attempt to reconsider the Schwartz Sunday baseball bill voted down Monday night, 102 to 98. Today's action was taken without a record vote. There were 53 members voting for reconsideration and 73 against.

Representative Rice, Dauphin, presented the motion for reconsideration. His motion was seconded by Representative Meridith, of Chester.

Both of these members on Monday night voted against Sunday baseball.

The move was made with a small house. Many members had gone to their homes and most of that group had favored Sunday baseball.

Proponents of Sunday baseball had hoped to catch their opponents unawares and have the bill reconsidered during the confusion.

FIGHT NOT DROPPED

Anti-Blue Law forces, however, have not given up the fight for the ghost of the Musmanno local option bill, killed in the Law and Order Committee a month ago, appeared on the floor of the House today.

On the calendar, set for special business at 12:30 p. m., Pittsburgh time, netx Tuesday, is the Denning bill, so amended that it contains in essence the same plan as the original Musmanno measure.

DENNING BILL REVISED

The Denning bill, declared unconstitutional until Clinton Sowers, of Philadelphia, virtually rewrote it last night by amendment, was considered "local legislation." It was ignored as it made its way through to the third reading.

Butler Slight Consigned To Pigeon Hole

WASHINGTON, May 6.—(INS.)—Another diplomatic incident featuring Maj. Gen. Smedley D. Butler, U. S. Marine Corps, was consigned to a pigeonhole today.

It was reliably learned that the State Department will probably ignore the whole affair resulting from the Haitian minister, M. Bellegardes, expressing doubt concerning the existence of Fort Riveria, in Haiti, for the capture of which Butler was awarded a Congressional Medal of Honor.

Butler protested to the State Department over M. Bellegardes' alleged statements, contending they reflected upon himself and the honor of the Marine Corps. The State Department asked the Haitian minister for an explanation, and in making it Bellegarde fell back on the ancient diplomatic prerogative of saying he had been misquoted. He didn't deny the existence of the fort, he said, but merely stated he had never heard of it.

The case probably will be marked "disposed" tomorrow, and that will end it.

FAIR RATE BILL BACKERS HEARD BY SENATE COMMITTEE

ABOLITION OF P. S. C. URGED

Commission Has Forfeited Confidence of Public, Staudenmeier Declares

HARRISBURG, May 6.—(AP.)—The proponents of the Governor's three fair rate board measures today presented their arguments in support of the bills at a public hearing before the Senate judiciary general committee in the Senate chamber.

Representative Charles W. Staudenmeier, Schuylkill, sponsor of the bills, was in charge of the proponents' speakers.

Staudenmeier said that one bill abolishes the Public Service Commission, another creates a fair rate board in its place, and the third adds, detracts from and changes the public service company law. He said several amendments were necessary to the third bill and will be presented to the committee next Monday.

CONFIDENCE LOST

He said the commission has lost the confidence of the people and should be abolished.

Staudenmeier said the commission has permitted new rates to go into effect under the law, before its approval or consideration of them.

The third bill prevents the utilities from earning more than 8 per cent. of their investment value, providing for a return to the state of all excess earnings. Staudenmeier said, in answer to a question by Senator Rial. This provision would make utilities more careful in fixing their rates, Staudenmeier added.

EVANS SPEAKS

Staudenmeier called Attorney Harold Evans, of Philadelphia, counsel for the House Investigating Committee, as the next speaker.

He said there were write-ups of $113,000,000 in six electric companies, $91,000,000 of which was made since 1927. These, he said, were write-ups of figures on which the commission chose to make in their rate base calculations.

Concerning water companies, Evans said most of them in Pennsylvania originally were owned locally. Later, he said, these were sold to foreign-owned companies with write-up of the investment value throughout the security issues, which boosted the apparent value above the actual value.

PRIEST FAVORS RATE BILLS

Unable to attend the Senate hearing on Gov. Pinchot's three fair rate bills today, the Rev. James R. Cox, pastor of old St. Patrick's Church, in a message to Harrisburg, urged adoption of the legislation. Father Cox was detained here by the serious illness of his mother.

He said:

"Wise legislatures of all lands heed the voice of the people and they do not fly in the face of a public opinion which has become conviction. And if they do, history tells us, their doom is sealed."

FEAR GIRL SLAIN BY GUNMAN

NEW YORK, May 6.—(AP.)—One hundred Nassau County police were ordered out today to hunt for Helen Walsh, 16-year-old Brooklyn girl, who accompanied Francis Crowley on the automobile ride in which Patrolman Frederick Hirsch was shot and killed last night. She is believed to have been murdered.

District Attorney Elvin N. Edwards said he believed the girl, who has been missing since the shooting, was killed either by Crowley or by bullets fired at the automobile in which Crowley drove off after the killing of Patrolman Hirsch.

The Walsh girl was brought into the case unexpectedly when police found an abandoned automobile, its front cushions splashed with blood, and traced ownership to John McCahill, 19, of Roosevelt, L. I. McCahill told police that he, Miss Walsh and Clinton Davis, 19, had gone out for a drive last night and parked the car along a road at North Merrick, L. I.

Shortly after they had stopped, Crowley, who was known to both McCahill and Davis, approached the car, and frightened by his reputation, both boys fled.

and when I got up to see what was wrong, a man shoved me back in my seat.

"The other robber then came along. He had a revolver. He put his hand in my inside coat pocket and took the checks and my wallet which had $1.12 in cash. But he didn't see the $2,002 in cash in the pocket inside my vest.

"Then he said, 'Now don't get up,' and he and the other robber got off the car.

PASSENGERS FRIGHTENED

"But I got up and everybody in the car hollered, 'Sit down or they'll shoot.' It all happened so quickly I didn't realize what was going on.

"I've seen plenty of excitement in my day, so what's a holdup more or less? I don't feel the least bit badly about it except for the loss of the checks, which will necessitate a lot of trouble for the building and loan."

As the two bandits hopped off the street car, their auto was parked just in front, blocking the trolley's progress. They sped towards Warrington avenue.

Police soon arrived, a telephone call having tipped them off to the holdup.

Two men, John Reichert and William Keppel, 30, of 2513 Spring street, had seen the gunmen loitering outside the building and loan office. They saw one drop a blackjack and pick it up.

OFFICE WARNED

When Schafer walked to the street car stop, and the gunmen followed, Reichert and Keppel rushed to Shafer's office and told a clerk, Alonzo Schmitt, of the suspicious circumstances.

Schmitt telephoned the police.

An eyewitness to the escape was Mrs. Edna Evans, whose home at 1034 Mt. Oliver street, is just a few steps from the scene. She said:

"I was looking out the window and saw a man sitting at the wheel of an auto. He pointed a black revolver. I don't know whether he pointed it at me or somebody else. Just then two young fellows came around John street, jumped into the back seat and the auto started."

Motorman Shook didn't realize that a passenger was being held up. He said:

"I thought the man that turned out to be a bandit was getting off the car. Then I felt something against my ribs and the man told me to stop the car. I thought he wanted my money changer. I heard a commotion in the back of the car, then in a few minutes the two got off."

'IT' GIRL FACES LONG LAYOFF

HOLLYWOOD, May 6.—(INS.)—It will be "many months" before Clara Bow, titian-haired film star, can completely regain her health, Dr. J. Wesley Hommel predicted today.

Rest and freedom from excitement are urgently needed by Miss Bow, Dr. Hommel said. The actress was placed in Glendale Sanitarium after a sudden breakdown Sunday night. Dr. Hommel said:

"Overwork brought on her condition, together with the terrific strain she has been under since her first trouble with Daisy De Voe last November."

The physician said a series of articles about the actress appearing in a Pacific coast newspaper contributed to the nervous state which preceded her collapse.

FULL WORK UP TO INDUSTRY, SWOPE SAYS

General Electric President Speaks to International Business Men's Meeting

WASHINGTON, May 6.—(AP.)—Gerald Swope, president of the General Electric Company, told the International Chamber of Commerce today that the responsibility for regularization of employment rests on industry. He said:

"The more completely regularization of employment is effected, the less necessary is it for unemployment insurance, either on the part of industry or charitable and relief measures on the part of the community.

JOINT PROBLEM

"Therefore, the more complete regularization of employment becomes, the less in proportion is the necessity for providing for unemployment. In both instances, the co-operation and responsibility of the employe should be enlisted so that the solution for the industry may be joint as between management and employe."

Employment shared interest with wages and production problems on today's program.

Aloyse Meyer, of Luxemburg, president of the European Steel Cartel, discussed wages and their relation to the economic balance, drawing a distinction between nominal wages, or the amount of money paid, and "real wages," representing the amount of goods that can be bought with the pay. He said the introduction in European countries of the American system of high nominal wages would be dangerous.

WAGE RATIO TO COST

Meyer declared:

"It is of little consequence to a wage earner if his income be increased or decreased provided that the cost of living increases or decreases in the same proportions; his standard of life remains unchanged. That which is really important to him is to see his real wage increased."

The chamber heard a defense of mass production methods from Oskar Sempell, chairman of the German Steel Cartel, who said he was "strongly in favor" of rationalization of production in spite of "some doubts resulting from the present world market situation."

The technical progress made possible by mass production, Sempell said, is especially necessary in view of the depression.

has "no means of knowing when or how we shall emerge from the valley in which we are now traveling."

But, he does know that things will come out all right.

AFTER READING Mr. Mellon's speech in full, turn your mind to President Hoover's recent statement that the world's expenditure for war "is now nearly five billions of dollars yearly. An increase of nearly 70 per cent over that previous to the World War; 5,500,000 men are actively under arms and 20,000,000 in reserve."

Enough money is wasted on future wars that should not happen to solve the world's problems. Men are fools and so are the nations.

They need a lesson, and are getting it.

NOTHING SUCCEEDS like success, even if it is only temporary. President Chiang Kai-Shek, president of the Chinese republic, tells his international congress to study, imitate and emulate Soviet Russia. He tells his countrymen, especially, to imitate Russia's development of industries and communications.

THE RUSSIAN five-year plan has done many things. It has pushed Canada from third place to first in supplying wheat to Britain, pushed the United States from third to fifth place. It has caused some "best minds" in this country to change their attitude toward Russia from sneering to wondering and worrying.

In our troubles here we drift and ask each other:

"What do you think?"

The Russians have brains enough to formulate, adopt and stick to a PLAN. Whether they can succeed in the long run or not, four "best minds" are sure they must fail), at least they HAVE a plan, and are working at it.

George Daniels, Jr., driver of the car, and Thomas Meadows, another occupant, said a group of men stepped out onto the road and fired four or five shots at the automobile. One of the bullets struck the girl in the head. The youths took her back to a hospital at Jackson, where she died.

Sheriff Lee Combs said he expected to have those responsible in custody today. Bloodhounds were brought from Lexington to assist in the search. Bryan Burcham, 21, was arrested near the scene of the shooting and held in the Breathitt County jail for questioning, but the sheriff said he did not believe Burcham had fired a shot.

Sheriff Combs denied that National Guardsmen had been called out to guard the jail or prevent trouble. The jail was being guarded by a special detail of deputies lest feeling become aroused against Burcham, he said.

tion will be included in the passenger list. Four countries, Germany, the United States, Russia and England will be represented. Lieut. Commander Smith, of the United States Coast Guard, an expert on Arctic ice conditions, will represent the United States, and Prof. Samoilovich, who was aboard the Soviet ice-breaker Krassin which went to the rescue of the Nobile expedition in 1928, will represent Soviet Russia.

MEET EMERGENCIES

Dr. Eckener said:

"The rendezvous is expected to take place about the middle of July. The Graf will start from its base at Franz Josef land when the Nautilus is two days' distance from the Pole. We will carry a great deal of polar equipment, ice sledges, boats, clothing and provisions for all emergencies.

"The flight is intended to clarify the question whether the airship is the most appropriate means for transporting land exploration expeditions to the Arctic, to take them back when they have finished their explorations, or to relieve previous expeditions.

"I am confident of the success of our flight. Otherwise I would not undertake the trip with a woman on board. The polar equipment we are taking is largely to allay the fears of the public."

SUNDAY BALL LOSES AGAIN

Sowers had submitted a substitute Denning bill to replace the one he last night amended, and the blue law forces had promptly pickled it in committee. Sowers believes that on Tuesday, when the last battle over the blue law change occurs, the liberal forces will win unless a number dodge the issue as a few did on Monday night.

LOCAL OPTION

The Denning bill proposes in its present form that municipalities may, on signatures of 20 per cent of the voters, vote to decide whether Sunday baseball is the will of the communities. It does not specify other amusements, and would limit the hours from 2 to 6 p. m.

The original Denning measure specified a referendum in counties with county commissioners taking charge of the elections. The word "counties" was supplanted by "municipalities," and "county commisioners" was changed to "corporate officials."

As first written, the measure would permit counties to determine whether the blue law of 1794 would apply. It was considered unconstitutional because a county cannot set aside a state law.

The new bill is considered constitutional.

REED FIGHTS ARMY CUT BY HOOVER

Pennsylvanian Opposes Plan For Budget Saving by Reducing Defense Funds

By GEORGE R. HOLMES
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, May 6.—Genuinely concerned over the billion dollar Treasury deficit expected to be revealed when the government closes its books for the fiscal year 60 days hence, President Hoover has mapped out a series of departmental conferences which he hopes will result in drastic reductions in governmental expenditures.

The general purpose is to make next year's budget the lowest in years. It will have to be, if an increase in taxes is to be avoided. The first of these conferences, involving the War Department, will be held at the Rapidan fishing camp over the week-end.

SAVINGS ON DEFENSE

Mr. Hoover is represented as believing that the Army and the Navy probably present the best chances of effecting savings. The appropriations for these two departments represent about 20 per cent of the present budget, or about $800,000,000. The tentative figures for next year call for approximately the same amount.

Army and Navy authorities privately contend that no material reduction can be made in these figures—unless there is a change in present national defense policy so drastic as to me almost revolutionary. They contend any further economizing not only will destroy morale and the careful planning since the close of the World War, but will render the United States incapable of producing a real national defense in a time of crisis.

REED OPPOSES CUT

Senator Reed (Rep.), of Pennsylvania, almost invariably a defender of administration policies, voiced publicly what the Army heads say privately—that there can be no material reduction of Army expenditures without calamitous results. He said:

"Our Army already is the lowest per capita in the world. Frankly, I don't see how the Army expenditures can be materially reduced. We are at rock bottom now."

NAVY UNDERMANNED

The Navy is in a somewhat similar predicament. Ships are now actually laid up for lack of personnel to operate them, and still the Navy is considerably short of the parity with Great Britain which was pledged and agreed upon in the Washington and London naval treaties. The parity element in the next Congress is going to contend strongly for building up to the British level, despite Mr. Hoover's economy aims.

"Of course, we should build up to treaty strength. One thing is certain: If we don't, we will have no standing at the conference in 1935. You can't trade paper ships for real ships. It will cost money, of course, but it should be done."

Revolts of Students Deplored by Coolidge

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., May 6.

To the Editor of The Sun-Telegraph:

Reports that the student body of some educational institution has proposed to take over the authority vested by law in the board of trustees and the faculty are no longer novel, but they are none the less disquieting.

Mr. Coolidge

Charitable and devout persons have made donations to provide our youth with an opportunity for education. The government has contributed taxes. Parents send their children there often at considerable sacrifice. Some of our best men and women give their services as trustees. The result is a great charity for the benefit of young people. The object is mental and moral discipline through obedience to rules as well as application to study. The whole plan involves submission by the students to duly constituted authority.

Yet every little while these opportunities are ignored and these principles are rejected by a student revolt. The seat of the trouble is back in the home. Real reverence and obedience have not been sufficiently taught there. But institutions of learning cannot for that reason disregard their duty. If they meet their obligations they must train their students to realize that liberty comes only through obedience to law and devotion to truth. To teach that lesson is worth great sacrifice.

CALVIN COOLIDGE.

McGurn, Capone Aide, Weds 'Blonde Alibi'

CHICAGO, May 6.—(INS.)—"Machine Gun" Jack McGurn, reputed henchman of Al Capone, the only gangster ever accused formally in connection with the 1929 St. Valentine Day massacre, and Louise Rolfe, his so-called "blonde alibi," who enabled him to escape trial in the case, today were honeymooning following their marriage in a North Shore town.

McGurn's alibi when charged with mowing down the seven Moran gangsters was that he had been in a Loop hotel with Louise. And she unwaveringly, in the face of a severe grilling, substantiated his statement.

Man, Unable to Swim, Saves Boy From Creek

Jerry Susi, 31, of 2 Third street, Sharpsburg, rescued John Miller, 9, of Clay street, Sharpsburg, when the latter fell from an abutment into Pine Creek, near Etna, last night, and was sinking. Susi, though unable to swim, was able to pull the boy out of the water. Susi, after the rescue, said:

"I heard somebody yelling, so I went over to see what was wrong. John was going down for the last time. I can't swim, but I took a chance and got him just the same."

Susi's attention was attracted by small boys calling for help on the bank of the stream.

YORK HEIRESS SPURNS PARENTS FOR BROADWAY 'SHEIK'

FATHER TOLD OF LOVE FOR 'TONY'

Faints as Runaway Refuses Pleas to Return Home; 3 Men Face Police Quiz

By CROSWELL BOWEN, JR.
International News Service.

NEW YORK, May 6.—I still love Tony and I will never go back home.

This was 15-year-old Doris Louise Dempsey's answer today to pleas of her father that she return with him to their home in York, Pa., and "forget everything and begin anew."

The slim and pretty finishing school girl, the daughter of W. W. Dempsey, Jr., wealthy lumber merchant, ran away from her luxurious home in York two weeks ago. She said she wanted to get material for the novel she was writing about New York and its Broadway characters.

FOUND IN TENEMENT

The "Tony" she refers to is one of the men. He is Mark Anthony Cook, 23, of Halifax, Nova Scotia. He is a Broadway "shiek" type and met Doris shortly after her arrival here. Along with a brother, Edward Duncan Cook, 20, and Harry M. Steirwalt, 20, of Indianapolis, the trio was to appear in the police lineup today.

PLANNED TO WED

Doris said today:

"Certainly, I love Tony. He is a nice boy. We were going to be married in Greenwich, Conn., on Monday, but when the papers printed that I was a missing heiress Tony decided that we better not get married and that I ought to go back home.

"I do not want to go back home. People in York will gossip like they do in small towns. Oh, I wish I could go to Europe, anywhere to get away from it all. I was not happy at home. There were a lot of quarrels and mother would not let me have company. I was tired of being constantly scolded."

Tony, her boy friend, said he loved Doris, adding:

"If I had known she was only 15, I never would have let her fall in love with me.

TONY UNWORRIED

"She is young and beautiful. We were very happy going to parties on Broadway together. Now it looks like the police are going to give it to me. Am I worried? Just look at me, guy."

Tony and his brother entered the country illegally, police say.

The proud Dempsey family is prostrated with grief as a result of the girl's running away and the ensuing notoriety. Mrs. Dempsey is in a state of collapse in York, unable to come here to "bring home" her daughter. Dempsey fainted when he greeted his daughter in the police station.

POSES AS MATE, ROBS WOMAN

Someone knocked on the door to the apartment of G. B. Delzell, 3450 Ward street, early today and called:

"Let me in. I've lost the key."

Mrs. Delzell, thinking it was her husband, who is employed nights, opened the door.

BOROUGHS AID HOSPITAL DRIVE

The women's advisory committee of the Children's Hospital met yesterday to discuss plans for their twenty-first annual flower day, May 16.

Cash boxes will be distributed to 2,000 workers at 160 stations in Allegheny County. Fifty-three boroughs outside of Pittsburgh will participate in the campaign. Twenty-eight thousand dollars is the goal this year, it was stated by Mrs. Benjamin Page, chairman in charge of arrangements. She said:

"Our annual flower day campaign for funds is an indispensable part of our maintenace program for the hospital. This year we have chosen the second Saturday before Decoration Day in order not to conflict with the poppy days of the American Legion and Veterans of Foreign Wars."

Mrs. Herbert Du Puy, chairman of the executive committee, is sponsoring the campaign. Presidents of women's clubs in boroughs will act as chairmen. The following members of the women's advisory committee will assist in organizing the drive: Mrs. Stewart Johnston, Mrs. Frank N. Black, Mrs. W. W. Blackburn, Mrs. Julian Burdick, Mrs. D. M. Borah Scores Race To Produce Wealth

NEW YORK, May 6.—(AP.)—Senator William E. Borah, of Idaho, said last night that civilization, "gone mad in producing wealth, stands indicted by the spectacle of 700,000,000 persons in the world in dire poverty while overproduction is blamed for almost universal depression."

He spoke at a mass meeting of the American Jewish Joint Distribution Committee, which opened its campaign to raise funds for Jewish relief in Europe.

Still Repairmen Held Dry Violators

HARRISBURG, May 6.—(AP.)—Plumbers who repair stills for home brewers are as guilty of aiding and abetting violators of the prohibition laws as are bartenders who work for owners of speakeasies, Judge Watson ruled in Federal Court here yesterday.

The ruling was made as the court sentenced two Pittsburgh youths, charged with aiding violators of the liquor law, who pleaded they were repairing and not operating a still they had when arrested.

CITY AUTO TAX OPPOSED

Any attempt to enact legislation that would authorize a city or county tax on automobiles, in addition to the present state levies, will be vigorously opposed by the Pittsburgh Motor Club, C. H. Roth, secretary of the organization, said today.

Roth's statement followed a speech made by Thomas A. McMahon, chief city tax assessor, before the Pittsburgh Real Estate Board yesterday.

McMahon advocated the added tax for repair and construction of city streets and county roads.

Roth said:

"Such a tax would be extremely unfair to the motorist. The taxes levied by the state are very high and any proposal to increase them in any way would be opposed by the Pittsburgh Motor Club with every power at its command."

Parents Advised To 'Grow Young' With Children

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., May 6.—(AP.)—Adults may find the "fountain of youth" through comradeship and play with their children, J. W. Faust, New York, chairman of the committee on recreation, told the National Congress of Parents and Teachers. He said:

"If American families would spend more of the time they devote to golf and poker or arguing about prohibition in games of walking or reading with their youngsters, homes would be happier."

ILEANA, ANTON TAKE TO AIR

BUCHAREST, Rumania, May 6.—(AP.)—Princess Ileana and Archduke Anton, of Austria, principals of a romance of the air, are visiting various places in Germany by airplane.

Archduke Anton

After the betrothal ceremony at Umkirch Castle Monday night, they took off in the archduke's plane from Freiburg yesterday and went to Friedrichshafen to view the Graf Zeppelin. They plan other short trips in the next few days before Anton returns to Spain and Ileana goes to Venice with her mother, Queen Marie.

A mutual fascination for aviation is said to have been cupid's weapon in the case of Ileana and Anton. They met at Umkirch Castle at Easter and improved their acquaintance by daily flights about the countryside. A similar delight on both their parts for motorcycling and skiing cemented the attachment.

It is likely that the archduke will make an aviator of the princess. In addition to being an accomplished flier and plane engineer, he is a keen instructor of flying and has already given "wings" to 25 persons.

CROAT KING SCORED BY EINSTEIN

Scientist Joins Novelist In Protesting Slaying Of Professor in Zagreb

By OTTO D. TOLISCHUS
International News Service.

BERLIN, May 6.—A stir was caused here today by publication of a joint letter written by Dr. Albert Einstein, the world famous scientist, and the novelist, Heinrich Mann, accusing the Jugoslavian government of complicity in the murder of the Croatian professor, Milan Sufflay, in Zagreb on February 18.

The letter was sent to the Paris headquarters of the International League for Human Rights, where preparations were immediately launched for an official protest to Belgrade.

ATTACK KING

In the communication, which was sharply worded and pointed in its attack, Einstein and Mann charged that King Alexander of Jugoslavia and Serbian officials "encouraged" the slaying of Prof. Sufflay, and named his actual murdered as a member of a "terrorist organization" known as "Young Jugoslavia." The letter read:

"It must not happen that murder can be unscrupulously used as a political weapen. It must not happen that murderers can be elevated to the status of international saints."

Prof. Sufflay, an outstanding scientific authority and a leader in Croatian affairs, was struck down as he was walking through the streets of Zagreb, the capital of Croatia, within a few weeks after a visit paid by King Alexander to the capital.

THREATS MADE

At the time of the King's visit, the letter charged, many prominent Croats received letters signed "For King and Country," in which their lives and those of their families were threatened if they uttered any protest while the monarch was there.

Prof. Sufflay's murder, the communication charged, was plotted in the office of Gen. Belimarkovitch, military commandant of Zagreb. The letter named three accomplices alleged to have aided the murderer in carrying out the slaying.

Mann is a brother of Thomas Mann, generally regarded as German's leading literary figure.

House Cat Helping Collie to Mother Wildwood Pups

"MARY," JUST A CAT, MOTHERS BROOD OF EIGHT PEDIGREED COLLIE PUPPIES BORN WHEN HER THREE KITTENS DIED

Mother-hungry "Mary," common house cat at the W. B. Brenneman home, Wildwood, helping with the eight tiny puppies that came not long ago to "Louise," blue-blooded collie. Eight were too much for the dog mother, so "Mary," kittens dead, helps.

Cat Aids Collie Mother Rear Family of Eight

Bow wow! Meow!

It's all the same to eight tiny puppies on the W. B. Brenneman country estate near Wildwood, who have a pedigreed collie mother and a common house cat foster-mother.

And the rightful mother of the squirming happy litter welcomes the purring solicitation of tabby.

In fact, Louise, the dog, has tabby to thank for saving the lives of at least five of the litter which lay, cold and hungry, in the barn while their mother was caring for five little brothers and sisters in a hollow tree back of the Brenneman home. Two of those died, but the other three, hale and hearty, are back in the barn with the faithful collie and tabby hovering near.

Mary, the Brenneman cat, lost three kittens a week ago last Monday. Saturday, the puppies came, and Mother Louise had her paws full. When she left the barn, Mary followed and cuddled the young ones while the big dog rested in the hollow tree. Later, Mary Brenneman, daughter of W. B. Brenneman, found the five puppies, cold and hungry in the barn.

Miss Brenneman gathered them up and took them to the house, where Tabby found them and nursed them back to normalcy. The daughter of the household is proud of her pet cat, which bears her own given name.

The cat has long been a house pet, having come into the Brenneman home when Miss Brenneman was "just a little girl."

Crowning by Byrd Thrills Apple Blossom Queen

WINCHESTER, Va., May 6.—(INS.)—Born and raised in Winchester, England, which is governed by a king and queen, Miss Patricia Dacre Morton had to take a trip across the Atlantic and come here to experience the thrill of how it feels to be crowned a queen in the Yankee way.

She blushed today as the eyes of her 35 princesses — beauties from various cities—her ladies-in-waiting and her military guard gazed on her. She said:

"It was too thrilling for words."

The "high priest" who crowned her "Queen Shenandoah XIII" in the quaint English coronation ritual was Rear Admiral Richard Evelyn Byrd, who also got an ovation when he appeared before the thousands of tourists here to view the gigantic apple blossom festival.

At noon today the royal party was given a luncheon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John M. Steck, in the afternoon a military parade was held in honor of the queen, an aerial circus was repeated over Byrd Airport and tonight the queen's ball will be held.

Miss Florence Weingartner, of New Castle, Pennsylvania's representative beauty, was one of the queen's asasistants and was by her side during all of the major events.

ACTION SOUGHT ON MUSMANNO POLICE BILLS

Sponsor Moves to Force Vote on Two Measures 'Locked' in Committee

HARRISBURG, May 6.—With the Wilson coal and iron police bill killed in the House, M. A. Musmanno, sponsor of two bills proposing the abolition of the coal police, intends today to try to shake his measures out of the Senate Judiciary General Committee.

This committee, holding the bills for more than a month on the plea that they would wait for the Governor's Wilson bill, lost that explanation with the defeat of the measure yesterday by a vote of 142 to 43.

Final action to kill the measure came late yesterday afternoon when Musmanno moved to reconsider it—a motion which was voted down and, according to the rules, ended the life of the bill for this session. This came after an extended debate, in which Carl Baldridge, of Edgewood, attacked the Governor's sincerity in attempting to abolish the police and Musmanno led an attack on the Wilson measure provision which called for a protective force.

The appearance of Charles Staudenmaier, Pinchot sponsor for the fair rate bills, and his plea to defeat the Wilson bill clinched the battle.

Only 43 votes were recorded for it, and these comprised, for the most part, Grundy men from the rural sections who, the night before, had most strongly opposed the Sunday baseball amendment.

Toy Cats Given Backer of Tax On Felines

HARRISBURG, May 6.—(AP.)—Two celluloid cats were on the desk of Senator Chapman, of Warren, when he entered the Senate chamber today.

These were the gift of Lieut. Gov. E. C. Shannon and were given to Chapman because of his introduction of a measure yesterday to provide a 50-cent tax per annum on all cats.

TAKING OF TIRE DATA SIFTED

Unable to take legal action against officials of the Cooper Tire Company at Findlay, O., for their reported seizure and destruction of data collected by M. C. Conick, Main & Co. auditor, in connection with the dual audit of the Department of Supplies, the district attorney's office indicated today that it would, however, take cognizance of the incident.

Assistant District Attorney William H. Colvin said that the facts as revealed by the Citizens Committee auditor would be given consideration when the report of the audit is submitted to him.

The seizure was disclosed upon the return of Conick from the Ohio city, where he had gone to examine the records of the transactions of the tire company with the City of Pittsburgh.

BILL PROPOSES SHORT LOANS FOR CITY

Mansfield Offers Measure To Aid Pittsburgh; No Defiicit Seen, Says Kerr

HARRISBURG, May 6.—Authority for emergency loans in anticipation of taxes, would be granted to Pittsburgh under a bill introduced today by Senator William D. Mansfield, McKeesport. The loan must be repaid in the year it is made or in the next year, before any new obligations are assumed, the measure provides.

The aggregate of such emergency loans would be limited to $750,000, and the maximum would not exceed 10 per cent of the estimated revenue of the city for the year.

Unless the short term notes are redeemed during the year in which created, the city controller must include them in his estimate of liabilities which must be met out of the receipts of the next year before ordinary appropriations may be made, the bill adds.

Dr. James P. Kerr, city controller, said today that the City of Pittsburgh is in a healthy financial condition and that he does not believe there will be a deficit faced at the first of next year.

Dr. Kerr, addressing the Rotary Club, said:

"The time has come for progressively reducing the tax rate, for rigid economies and most efficient management. The problem of the city officials is to meet the increased demands for service without increasing taxes, and I believe it can be done through economic administration."

The return of a portion of the state gasoline tax to the city was also advocated by Dr. Kerr.

TAX RISE NOTICE BILL SIGNED

HARRISBURG, May 6.—The South Hills controversy regarding increased tax assessments without notice to property owners, has been ended through signature of a bill by Gov. Pinchot.

It is a measure sponsored by Senator William D. Mansfield, McKeesport, which requires five days' notice of appeal dates be given to each taxable and that the notice show the change in assessed valuation which has been made.

In the 1930 assessments, property owners of Brookline and South Hills protested their assessments had been increased without notice to them and without giving them an opportunity to appeal for revision.

In addition to Carter's body, that of his wife, their two daughters and a woman roomer in the home were found about the house.

The bodies were found by a party of neighbors who went to the Carter home when members of the family did not appear about the dwelling at the usual hour this morning.

TOKIO, May 6.—(AP.)—Ten more employes of the Japan Dyeing and Weaving Company, who went on a hunger strike when a worker was discharged, were taken to a hospital today because of their weakened condition, leaving 140 still locked in a warehouse refusing food.

A chimney-sitter, who ascended the 130-foot smokestack of the dye works several days ago and said he would stay there until the strike is settled, was still up. He gets his food and water on a rope.

ADMITS SPREAD OF BOGUS COINS

William Francis, alias William Wilson, 20, of Wheeling, alleged counterfeiter of 50-cent pieces, today confessed that he had left a trail of bogus coins in nearly a score of cities from Washington to New Orleans since last September, William Landvoigt, United State secret service operative, said.

Francis was arrested in McKees Rocks last night and will be arraigned before a United States commissioner late today. Landvoigt said Francis admitted he had passed 165 of the counterfeit coins in Pittsburgh during the last four weeks. When arrested he had seven in his possession, and a search of his room, 1204 Arch street, revealed 30 more and apparatus for making the counterfeit pieces, Landvoigt declared.

COUNTY GUARDS AIRPORT FUND

County Commissioners have decided to conserve the funds for the county airport by providing, for the present, only those essential buildings and appurtenances required by a landing field acceptable to the United States Department of Commerce.

At a meeting yesterday, a request from Norman F. Brown, director of the Department of Public Works, for authority to advertise for fences and gates at an estimated cost of $7,500 was held over. Chairman Joseph G. Armstrong said:

"It will be time enough to get fan-dangles when we are sure the money is going to hold out. We've got to save money for main items so that the flying field will be ready this summer."

The commissioners authorized the advertising for field lighting and miscellaneous electrical work at an estimated cost of $65,000; gasoline storage and distributing system, $35,000; sanitary sewers and septic tanks, $9,500.

Naval Station Pup Killed in Tug With Airship

LAKEWOOD, N. J., May 6.—(AP.)—Tige, the naval station's 9-month-old bull pup, is dead because he wanted to be an air sailor.

When the naval airship J-3 was called from its hangar yesterday Tige snatched a rope end in his teeth and assisted in holding the craft to earth.

The landing crew cast off when the signal was given, but nobody thought to tell Tige it was time to let go. So Tige clamped his jaws tighter and hung on as the ship soared away.

For five minutes the pup swayed in the air as the dirigible rose 400 feet in the sky. He fell into a clump of pines.

TWO ROB DRIVER OF CASH, CAB

Two Negroes who early today engaged Casper Shirmun, of 20 Congress street, a taxicab driver, to drive them from McKeesport to Kirkpatrick street and Bigelow boulevard, held up the driver at their destination, robbed him of $3 and after throwing him out, drove away in the cab. Police broadcast a description of the robbers.

Two armed men early today held up P. J. Burgoon and H. B. Brown, attendants at a gasoline station at 7040 Kelly street, and robbed the place of $80.

AIR RACE VICTOR HURT IN FALL

LONDON, May 6.—(INS.)—An emergency operation was performed early today upon Flight Lieut. H. R. D. Waghorn, winner of the last Schneider trophy race and the latest victim of a long series of British air accidents.

Waghorn and his civilian assistant, E. R. D. Alexander, were injured when a plane they were testing near Farnborough went into a spin. Both attempted parachute descents from an altitude of 300 feet.

A few minutes after news of the Waghorn accident was received, dispatches from Durban, South Africa, revealed that Lieut. Com. Glen Kidston, millionaire sportsman and aviator, lost his life in the crash of his plane at Natal.

'Chili Fish' Balks At Becoming Chief

MUSKOGEE, Okla., May 6.—(AP.)—Nobody is going to call Chili Fish chief. He has refused to be boss of the Seminoles even at the request of President Hoover. The job was mostly for the purpose of signing a deed, but Chili Fish thinks the government has closed a school it shouldn't have.

Flier Safe in Crash Breaks Leg Walking

JANESVILLE, Wis., May 6.—(AP.)—Forced down, Carl Krause and his brother, Herman, Janesville aviators, landed their plane without injury in a stumpy field near here yesterday.

BRITAIN HONORS KING GEORGE

WINDSOR, England, May 6.—(AP.)—The ringing of bells in the Royal Chapel and Windsor Church reminded the people that today was the twenty-first anniversary of the accession of George V to the throne of England.

The King, recuperating from a recent attack of bronchitis, spent the day quietly within Windsor Castle. With him was Queen Mary, who has been his constant companion through an eventful reign, which began with the death of Edward VII, on May 6, 1910.

King George's solicitude for his subjects has been recognized by high and low. His people have demonstrated their affection on many occasions, notably when the armistice was signed and after his recovery from a serious illness in 1928.

In London and in naval and military centers throughout the British Empire the occasion is being observed with the customary gun salutes to the monarch.

Both Anthony H. G. Fokker, veteran designer, and Assistant Secretary Young in charge of aeronautics, said they felt that the problems would be solved shortly satisfactorily.

No Exchanges—No C. O. D.'s—All Sales Final

"Rounded" Performance

The Torsiograph, one of the most nearly infallible of automotive laboratory instruments, records accurately the vibration of any rotating shaft. The closer the record chart approaches a true circle, the more nearly perfect the balance of the crankshaft. At the left are shown the Torsiographic records of The Dictator Eight nine (9) bearing crankshaft and those of two other eights of double The Dictator's price. Notice the smooth roundness of The Dictator graph contrasted with the irregularity, or "humpiness" of the other two.

NO CAR in its price class equals The Dictator's 81 horsepower engine for the velvet volume of its power . . . and you can double the price and still not equal this smooth-running, vibrationless Dictator Eight.

This unmatched smoothness of the lowest priced Studebaker Eight proceeds primarily from the precision of Studebaker engineering which is the sworn enemy of vibration. The crankshaft of The Dictator has nine (9) bearings and is balanced both statically and dynamically. A short stroke contributes to smoothness. A vibration damper of the most effective design is used. Dual carburetion and manifolding, feeding exactly proportional amounts of fuel to each cylinder, eliminate "starving" of the end cylinders and assure even power impulses.

Free Wheeling still further accentuates the incredible smoothness of Dictator performance. Silent and smoother gear-shifting with less clutch-pushing . . . 15% to 20% saved in gasoline and oil . . . 50% simpler to drive . . . and so much safer than ordinary motoring that traffic officials of states and cities have testified to the security of Studebaker's type of Free Wheeling.

Decide on no "new car" of the old order until you have driven this Free Wheeling Dictator Eight.

MARTIN WARNS STATE TO KEEP TAXES DOWN

High Levies Damaging to Industries, Treasurer Tells Republican Women

SCRANTON, Pa., May 6.—(AP.)—Gen. Edward Martin, state treasurer and chairman of the Republican State Committee, today said that Pennsylvania must avoid the perils of high taxes which are already damaging industry in several states.

In an address before the Pennsylvania Council of Republican Women, Martin said:

"We cannot expect to lower taxes as long as the demand for more service continues.

"The plea for larger expenditures is highly organized, while few oppose greater expenditures. The practical politician does not seem to have the courage to oppose them. The average citizen seems to be willing to go alone.

"We cannot help by shifting the tax burden from one division of government to another. The money all comes from the same pocket. In order that Pennsylvania may continue to move forward beneficially to all classes of people we must be progressive, yet conservative. We must be sure that the old order has outlived its usefulness before taking on the new. Because the individual has erred is no reason to condemn the basic structure."

Martin said that in 1800 the cost of the state government was $250,000 and in 1930 had increased to $200,000,000. Local expenditures, too, have expanded greatly, he added, stating that from 1910 to 1928 the levies for county, borough, city, township and school purposes had increased from $112,000,000 to $359,000,000.

HUNDREDS ATTEND

Hundreds of women from all sections of the state are attending the spring conference of the Republican women. The session will continue all day with Miss S. M. R. O'Hara, of Wilkes-Barre, president of the council, presiding. Mrs. Worthington Scranton, Republican National Committee member, is in charge of the council's conference program.

Other speakers on today's program incuude Mrs. Gifford Pinchot, William R. Straughn, president of the State Teachers' College, Mansfield, Pa., and Judge Sara M. Soffel, Pittsburgh.

TROOPS READY IN MINE STRIKE

HARLAN, Ky., May 6.—(AP.)—A gun battle in which four men were slain and two wounded was the latest disorder in the Harlan County coal fields to be investigated by a special grand jury, summoned today to probe recent violence and sabotage blamed on labor troubles.

Sheriff J. H. Blair, after the outbreak yesterday, asked Gov. Flem D. Sampson to send state troops to the mining regions, but no word was received from the Governor last night.

Deputy sheriffs and mine guards were fired on by a band of about 40 union sympathizers near Evarts, and in the resulting battle James Daniels and Otto Lee, deputies; Howard Jones, a commissary clerk, and Carl Richmond, a member of the attacking party, which deputies claimed opened fire from ambush, were killed. Shepard Purciful and Estes Cox, mine guards, were wounded, but expected to recover.

Sarnoff Predicts Many Television Stations Soon

NEW YORK, May 6.—(AP.)—David Sarnoff, president of the Radio Corporation of America, predicted at the annual stockholders' meeting that before the end of next year several television transmitting stations would be installed in the New York area. He said:

"Television will not supersede broadcasting, but the two services will be complementary."

To assure the industrial development of television, Sarnoff cautioned that hasty and premature actions would defeat the future possibilities of the service.

The federal census, Sarnoff declared, indicated that radio still had a large field ahead of it.

ELOPING GIRL, 15, FORGIVEN

Joseph Priore, 24, of Locust street, McKeesport, took Nellie Salvucie, 15, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Salvucie, 1319 Tube Works street, to Aliquippa yesterday, where they were married.

McKeesport police took Priore to the detention room last night and held him after Carmen Ricci, brother-in-law of the bride, told Lieut. Charles Eccles that "there might be trouble at the girl's home."

This morning her father told police "everything was all right," and the couple would be remarried in St. Peter's Roman Catholic Church, McKeesport, in three weeks.

Priore was released from the detention room and went home to his bride.

MINE FIRE FIGHT WAITS APOLOGY

Until Webster Hinnau, Crafton borough engineer, publicly apologizes to John M. Casey & Company for charges of incompetency, efforts to halt a mine fire which is regarded a menace to residents of Crafton and the Twenty-eighth ward, will not be resumed, a committee of citizens whose property was effected, told Crafton council at its meeting last night. The Casey company was awarded the work on a cost-plus basis, but succeeded in piercing only the first starta before the appropriation was exhausted. Since then the fire has burned uninterrupted.

Life Hope Wanes For Dr. Michelson

PASADENA, Cal., May 6.—(AP.)—Dr. Albert A. Michelson, 79, distinguished physicist and the first in this country to win the Nobel prize for scientific achievement, is growing gradually weaker. Attending physicians have expressed a fear he may not recover. Overwork in his final experiment to eliminate a slight error in his determination of the speed of light brought a nervous collapse a month ago.

Temple Waits Aimee: 'Ma' Kennedy Is Ill

LOS ANGELES, May 6.—(AP.)—While Angelus Temple workers were busy today preparing to welcome Aimee Semple McPherson home about May 16 from her world cruise, Mrs. Minnie Kennedy, the evangelist's mother, lay ill in a small house nearby.

POLICE MISS 2 SLOT MACHINES

County detectives reported that at least two slot machines, overlooked by the police in Police Supt. Peter P. Walsh's crusade, were found yesterday at 2624 Brownsville road Michael Stabile, leading a squad of county detectives, reported finding some moonshine and two slot machines, when they raided a club said to be operated by Louis Roberts. Complaint had been filed by residents of the neighborhood.

The finding of the machines came within 24 hours after Supt. Walsh had issued the order, to which he had requested the signature of inspectors, captains and lieutenants.

Roberts arrested was charged before Alderman George J. Anderson with violating the Snyder act and maintaining gambling devices, the detectives said.

CITY SHUTS OFF WATER TAPS

City Treasurer Schooley's campaign to force collection of water rents by shutting off the customers' supplies has brought results, he said today, but the exact number who have refused to pay up will not be known until tomorrow.

A number of lines have been shut off in the First Ward, he said, and will not be turned on until payment is made. Schooley said:

"The men out in the field haven't reported back to me on how many taps they shut off. I expect that report within the next 24 hours. Then we can compare their record with that of payments in my office."

Schooley's drive will continue until November 15 and will embrace the city's 32 wards.

Your Mother Goes —or I go!

A husband's own true story of how his wife and his mother—living under a single roof—loving him with equal fierceness—succeeded only in dragging his soul through hell

AN orphan—Flo called herself—that evening we met in the city—strangers—lonely. After that night—I lived for her passionate lips—lips that enticed me into marriage.

Penniless—we left the city—went to my small-town home—and to my poor, old widowed mother who loved me more than life. Haughty, cold, selfish at heart—Flo disliked Ma—but smiled on her—when she refused to live with us—after buying our furniture with money she'd saved for her burial!

Flo spent wildly—kept me broke—baby came—and Flo took pneumonia. When Ma sold her house to pay our bills—she had to live with us. Two women—one roof—that's when hell cut loose!

Kind, noble—Ma did all the work—never complained. Flo sulked, nagged—even cursed Ma for kissing baby—for little things—for nothing at all. I couldn't understand. I suffered—stormed—but with her ravishing body—Flo would burn, to cinders all defense for Ma.

Then Ma took neuralgia—couldn't work. That capped the climax. Flo kept growing nastier—UNTIL—that day Ma broke a pitcher—trivial thing—a molehill that flared into a mountain. "Get out—out of my home, you worthless hag"—Flo screamed and, swinging on me—"This roof's too small—she's got to go, Eddie—or out I go—this minute!"

"Stop," I roared. "You're cruel as a snake." Flo moved toward me—voluptuous arms circled my neck—"Ma's sick," I struggled on, "No friends—no place to go—she'd die! Before you drive her out"—Flo's lips sought mine—"I'll see you—damn you—I'll see you—you. . . ."

Which woman did Eddie choose? Did his slavish desire for Flo once more tear into shreds his sense of justice—send into the streets this aged mother he loved and worshiped—his own mother who worked, sacrificed, gave all to make them happy?

Or, here in this thundering climax, did destiny force Eddie to drive from his home this wife who had made him so happy—had borne his child—and whose embraces were still an ecstasy he craved like dope?

You simply must read for yourself MY MOTHER AND MY WIFE—a helpless husband's own true story of how his wife and mother—loving him with equal fierceness—dragged his soul through hell and how he finally solved this terrible domestic tangle, the like of which has wrecked a million homes.

PURE STREAMS APPEAL MADE

Comments on stream pollution and the condition of the downtown river fronts, were made today in a communication given City Council and the Allegheny County Commissioners by the Pittsburgh Architectural Club.

The club advocates a stringent program of dock and wharf improvement and placing of necessary sewage disposal plants below street levels.

The club charges that industrial plants had never attempted to devise methods whereby waste of their plants could be returned in pure condition to the three rivers.

The streams flowing through the city, the complaints said, are so polluted that were individuals to have such nuisances on their properties they would be subject to fines by the Board of Health.

Pollution is keeping away new industries, it was declared in the resolution.

Fat Burns Woman, Sets Home Afire

Mrs. Louis Siegal, 38, of 1304 Clark street, was burned about the hands by fire which followed the explosion of a pan of hot lard on the second floor of her home last night.

The woman's husband, who conducts a butcher shop on the first floor, ran upstairs and helped his wife to the street. The flames, which resulted in damage estimated at $3,000, were extinguished by firemen.

U. S. Deficit So Far Totals $903,320,000

WASHINGTON, May 6.—(INS.)—The government's deficit last Monday amounted to $903,320,000 against a deficit of $125,950,000 recorded the same day last year, it was learned at the treasury department today.

I Miss My Swiss

By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER

Good news for Americans in Europe this summer. No, it's not about Napoleon's tomb, the catacombs or the leaning tower of Pisa.

After all, the leaning office building of Pisa was only the work of a cross-eyed bricklayer.

The good news is that speed limits are off in the Swiss Alps. A motorist can go as fast as he likes. Ain't that something?

You can drive that car as swift and as fancy as your little heart and engine desire. In any direction. Horizontal, skidwise or mostly vertical.

You can step on the gas and scram around the cater-corner of a revolving precipice at the rate of 90 miles an hour. If you last that long.

You can't climb up one of those Alpine cliffs without getting so dizzy you've got to nail your hat on. But the bighearted Swiss Chamber of Stalled Commerce is giving you carte blanche to upset your cart.

That certainly is nice. Especially when the intelligent motorist instructs his chauffeur to take the car across the Alps. Then the owner burrows through the mountains like a mole.

We have been up on those indignant hills so close to the next accident you could hear the the angels gossip. And we have come to the conclusion that there ain't anything safe in this world except a telephone booth. And we want a three-ton concrete base on that with a lightning rod on the roof.

Yet, the Swiss Chamber of Industrious Vertigo has given us international permission to bounce across the Alps on a road narrower than a debutante's neck.

In addition to this the Swiss Chamber of Litigated Estates warns us that Swiss mailwagons, fire trucks and stage coaches have the right-of-way and that American tourists must take the outside edge around corners, on hairpin detours and up scraggly boulevards so high that hens walk downstairs to lay eggs.

When we take the outside edge it ain't going to be on the flagpole of the Empire State Building. Neither is it going to be on a Swiss mountain that is all knees and elbows and no lap.

No. Let those big-hearted boys on the Swiss Chamber of Sunday Driving do the sudden motoring over the Alps and we will join the Swiss Chamber of the Bent and Twisted Chassis.

School Head Given Raise in E. Liverpool

EAST LIVERPOOL, O., May 6.—School Superintendent Herbert G. Means, who came here two years ago from North Braddock, Pa., was re-elected for a four-year term at a salary of $5,000 a year, an increase of $250, by the Board of Education today.

High School Principal B. G. Ludwig, formerly of Martins Ferry, who was named here four years ago, was re-elected for one year at a salary of $3,000. One hundred and sixty-four teachers were elected.

Wins $10,000 Verdict In Crossing Crash

A. O. McCartney, of Kilbuck Township, was awarded $10,000 damages for injuries in a crossing accident, in a verdict today against the Pennsylvania Railroad. McCartney, driving a coal truck to the Dixmont power plant, was struck by a Pennsylvania Railroad passenger train at a crossing near the power plant, in December, 1927.

AUTOIST WINS $22,000 AWARD

A verdict of $22,000 damages against the City of Pittsburgh in favor of Harry L. Shaw, Penn avenue, East End, for injuries in a collision between his automobile and a street car, was handed down by a jury in Common Pleas Court before Judge Elder W. Marshall.

Shaw was driving on East Ohio street, February 23, 1929, when his automobile skidded and struck a street car, according to the testimony. The city was charged with negligence in failing to remove ice, snow and mud from the street.

Mrs. Tillie Goldenberg, of the Morningside district, asked $50,000 damages for the death of her husband, Joseph S. Goldenberg, in a suit against Joseph Kroniser, of the East End. She charged the automobiles of Kroniser and Goldenberg collided June 15, at Hays street and North Negley avenue and that Goldenberg stepped on the runningboard of Kroniser's car to get his name.

Kroniser drove away rapidly, heedless of Goldenberg's pleas to stop, and crashed into a fireplug, the car overturning on Goldenberg, according to the suit.

COUNTY MUSIC FUND BOOSTED

An appropriation for band concerts in the county's North and South parks has been increased by the County Commissioners from $900 as originally set up in the budget, to $2,000 each. Last year, $2,400 was given to each park.

M. E. Johnston, president of the musicians' union, appeared yesterday to urge the increased appropriation to benefit unemployed members of the organization. Thomas O'Shea, of McKeesport, declared the employment would help musicians in the rural communities.

Commissioner C. C. McGovern said:

"I'm afraid the rural musicians will be disappointed. This thing will be made purely political. The work will be given to the fellows downtown."

Chairman Joseph G. Armstrong demurred, saying there would be "no politics."

Real Estate

Actual home buying now going on shows a strong preference for houses whose building cost is under the $5,000 mark, according to the National Association of Real Estate Boards. A price ranging from $6,000 to $6,900 for the home and land, is proving the most popular at present, the board says.

STUDY SALES

This conclusion was arrived at after a study of the most recent 10,100 home sales made by members of the brokers division of the association. The reports of sales were from 100 firms in 76 cities, supplemented by city-wide reports from six real estate boards.

Of the sales, 10.29 per cent or 1,041 sales were reported for the group with a price range of $6,000 to $6,900. From this peak group the curve drops to the group between $4,000 and $4,900 price range in which 10 per cent of the total sales were made.

The national association's report on a whole shows a rather general distribution of sales in the various price fields. Homes in the price range of $30,000 to $34,000, the least popular group, sold in proportion to those in the most popular range in the ratio of one to six.

The Bartley-O'Neill Company, heating contractors, has leased from Edward G. Hartje the building at 240-42 Boulevard of the Allies, for a term of years, according to the United States Realty Company, downtown brokers. Extensive alterations on the property have been made.

The same brokers have leased for the Diamond-Smithfield Land Company to the Fashion Hosiery Company a storeroom at 546 Smithfield street.

HOME SOLD

Eugene S. Reilly & Co., represented by W. J. Foley, has sold for the Raleigh Development Company to Elisha W. and Clara D. Criswell the two-story brick home and garage at 1324 Malvern street.

An improved property in Avenue A, Forest Hills Borough, has been conveyed by the Interboro Improvement Company to A. R. Graham for a consideration of $6,525. The lot is 50x91 feet.

Applications for building permits follow:

HOLLYWOOD AND GOTHAM IN REVIEW; LOCAL AMUSEMENT NOTES

Studio Again Finds Grade Too Steep in Filming 'Over the Hill'

By HARRISON CARROLL

(Copyright, 1931, by Premier Syndicate.)

HOLLYWOOD, May 6.

Again Fox has found the grade too steep in "Over the Hill." Officials had halted production to look for a new set of juvenile actors between the ages of 16 and 18, and when the time came to shoot their episode in the story, they didn't match up well enough with the youngsters of the earlier reels.

Once before, this picture was stopped, to allow Mae Marsh to be put in the mother role.

I fancy that the splendid performances of the young actors in "Seed" made Fox realize they had to devote special attention to this phase of "Over the Hill." John M. Stahl's pictures set a high standard for work by children and juveniles. "Skippy," of course, was another outstanding example.

Henry King

There is a rumor that Henry King is not finding "Over the Hill" to his liking, and may turn the rest of the picture over to someone else. Directors and studios are getting more and more sensible that way.

LATEST GOSSIP

Adrain, M. G. M. fashion expert, is designing Eleanor Boardman's dressing room at Paramount . . . Norman Foster and Claudette Colbert plan to board a freighter and take another vagabond cruise this summer . . . Two offers, one for a picture and another for vaudeville, are being considered by Colleen Moore . . . After a long absence from Hollywood, Anna May Wong returns here next week. Several years ago, she couldn't get a job in the films. Her last important part was in Douglas Fairbanks' "The Thief of Bagdad." Now, she is to have the lead in "The Daughter of the Dragon" for Paramount . . . Though Sinclair Lewis will be consulted about the treatment of "Arrowsmith," Playwright Sidney Howard will make the actual adaptation for Samuel Goldwyn.

EDDIE ADVISES

Eddie Cantor, kidding everybody, including himself, is one of the sanest people in Hollywood.

"Any actor without a terrific ego," says Eddie, "develops an inferiority complex after he leaves Kansas City coming west to work in the talkies. Up until then he has been passing through towns he knows—has played in. But after Kansas City, it's all strange country."

Of course, it's not strange to Eddie now. He has signed a new contract to make two pictures a year instead of one, for Samuel Goldwyn. The country's reception of "Whoopee" left no doubt of the comedian's possibility as a film star. But Eddie won't make more than two a year. He thinks every actor in Hollywood should spend at least part of his time on the stage.

"If you don't have contact, that audience, it does something to you," says the star. "So when I finish 'Hocus Pocus' (his current picture), I'm going back to the stage even if I have to play nothing but benefits."

Theater Guild Buys New Sherwood Play

The Theater Guild announces the purchase of a new play by Robert E. Sherwood, "Reunion at Vienna." It will be produced next season, according to present plans, and it will probably be one of the plays in which Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne appear during their coming season with the Guild.

Workhouse Term Delays Honeymoon

Ingrown Nail Turns Right Out!

A few drops of "Outgro" in the crevice of the ingrowing nail reduces inflammation and pain and so toughens the tender, sensitive skin underneath the toe nail that it can not penetrate the flesh, and the nail turns naturally outward almost over night.

Plays, Players and By-Play

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

A Yiddish kiddish lass will be pert-rayed by Mollie Picon in the Nixon tonight, when "The Love Thief," operetta by Joseph Rumshinsky and Jacob Kalich, will be operettaed. This is the eighth tour of Miss Picon, who has just completed a long run in the Mollie Picon Theater, New York. The box office is open today.

Small Timer says he sometimes is at a loss to tell whether the claim of being a self-made man is a brag of accomplishment or a plea of guilt.

You know what a gasbag is supposed to be, of course. And the dirigible of "Dirigible" is a huge gasbag. A talker, leastwise "Dirigible" itself is. We are talking about the talkie in the Pitt, an aviation picture which was aided in the way of authenticity by Uncle Sammie's navee. Jack Holt, Ralph Graves and Fay Wray help to maintain the visual and lingual interest.

Perhaps it is technically proper that some of the live wire shows should be shocking.

Nancy Leslie, stepping specialist, will be a member of George Sharp's troupe in the Alv. next week. Nance will dance. She will strut artistically to the accompaniment of Hawaiian melodies in "Bird of Paradise," which was the moneyweight champion of its day.

If variety is the spice of life, as you may have heard, vaudeville should have a pleasant flavor. Should have, we said.

FAY WRAY CAST IN COLMAN PICTURE

Fay Wray will have the ingenue lead opposite Ronald Colman in "The Unholy Garden." She has been borrowed from Paramount for the picture. She has recently been seen in "Dirigible" and "The Finger Points."

Estelle Taylor is the other woman in the cast of this Ben Hecht-Charles MacArthur thriller. Director George Fitzmaurice is now busily engaged in examining the Hollywood Rogue's Gallery in the effort to collect players to appear as the dozen tough-looking international criminals and social outcasts described in the story.

Katharine Cornell Continues Drama

Katherine Cornell's production of "The Barretts of Wimpole Street" has passed its one hundredth performance in the Empire Theater, New York. The vitality of the play has determined Miss Cornell to continue the run throughout the summer and well into the fall without a vacation (for the first time in her acting career she faces July and August without the promise of some time off). Ultimately Miss Cornell will take "The Barretts of Wimpole Street" on the road.

Lionel Barrymore To Act and Direct

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer announces signing of new contracts with Lionel Barrymore and Nils Asther. Barrymore, who gave up work before the camera to direct "Madame X," "The Rogue Song" and other films, returned to acting ranks for a leading part in Norma Shearer's new film, "A Free Soul." He may both act and direct under the terms of the new contract. Asther recently returned from a trip abroad, and his next role has not yet been announced.

2 Seek Mt. Lebanon Commissioner Post

Andrew D. Robb, Jr., and John M. Dixon, candidates for the vacancy on the board of commissioners of Mt. Lebanon Township, presented their claims to Judge Joseph M. Swearingen today. Witnesses testified the board was split into two factions, that the seat made vacant by the death of Ferdinande H. Vitte represented the balance of power.

Marjorie Rambeau In Novarro Film

Marjorie Rambeau, whose last role was opposite Wallace Beery in "The Secret Six," has been added to the cast of Ramon Novarro's new starring picture, "The Son of the Rajah." In this photoplay are Madge Evans, C. Aubrey Smith, Conrad Nagel, Mitchell Lewis and John Miljan.

Junk Dealers' Fee Reduction Approved

Reduction of license fees for junk dealers from $25 to $5 was approved yesterday by the Finance Committee of City Council. A number of dealers recently petitioned Council to reduce the fee because of lack of business. The matter will probably be passed finally at a meeting next Monday.

Mike's

The old gang hasn't changed—oh, one or two
Have dropped away—but it is much the same;
I'm there a lot—I haven't much to do,
And life without a drink is pretty tame.
They always ask for you—I guess I've spun
A hundred yarns to quell their eagerness;
There's no sense telling them that we are done,
And, anyway, it isn't hard to guess.

It's funny to be standing there alone,
To watch the couples laugh away the night;
A dozen times I've started for the 'phone
To call you up—half reckless or half tight;

Yet if I did—I know that at the most
I'd whisper to a lost and lovely ghost!

—Don Wahn.

He Gets So Excited

When "Mercenary Mary" opened in London, Irving Caesar, who wrote and composed its songs, went to see it. After the show there was a dinner to which were invited many celebrated musicians, directors, composers, etc.

At the conclusion of the repast it was only natural that Caesar play some of his numbers, so he played: "I'm Just a Little Bit Fonder of You."

He was applauded handsomely and many slapped him on the back when he finished playing it. After which one gentleman remarked that he thought the ditty was somewhat reminiscent of Wagner.

"Wagner!" yelled Caesar as he pulled himself up to his full height of five feet four inches, "Wagner? What if it is—isn't Wagner good enough for them?"

Squelch

The other night an actor on the same bill with Miss Guinan got "into her hair" with his unfunny interruptions.

O, Mr. Wilstach!

Suggested for the simile dictionary by Roy Halee: As deceiving as a bathroom high-note . . . As futile as a robin serenading a riveter . . . As gay as an old ham with his two weeks' notice . . . As hopeless as Morton Downey singing "Asleep in the Deep" . . . About as binding as a wedding ceremony . . . Useful as an open phone booth in a subway station, and as understanding as another man's wife.

One Must Eat

Earl Carroll spends a little time every day watching the laborers work on his new theater. The other day he noticed four new men in the crew. They were hauling pails of sand or toting bricks and implements. Carroll went up to them.

"I didn't hire you guys. What's the idea?" he said.

"Don't be sore, Mr. Carroll," almost wept one of the overalled chaps, "we're trying to help get this house opened by Christmas—we are blackout-writers!"

Newspaperm Stuff

The boy hero of Colo., who was honored by the President the other day, was literally kidnaped out of the state by secret service agents, who went there at the President's orders to bring him to the Capitol. The agents refused to permit newspapermen to interview the lad before Mr. Hoover saw him, and editors told their representatives plenty for letting the "kidnapers" get away with it. The boy was hidden out of sight of photographers, too.

"A fine newspaper reporter you are!" thundered one editor. "The public wanted news about that kid right away—why let the President keep news about the lad such a secret?"

"Boss," alibied one Park Rogue, "it's a good thing Hoover wasn't President when Lindbergh returned from France—for he probably would have brought Lindy back in a submarine!"

Old, But Clean!

Joe Russell revives the one about the three old hermits who dwelled together in a shack in the Catskills.

One day, two years ago, one said:

"That girl was on a black horse!"

Yesterday the third chap packed his bag and started to leave.

"Where are you going—what's the matter?" asked the others.

A Form of Criticism

Contributor "E. A." interrupts to say:

"And then there was the foolish guy who got hydrophobia from back-biting a columnist."

Add Burn-Ups

A few years ago Florence and Mary Nash headlined in a vaudeville sketch at a Chicago theater. Also on the bill were Robinson's Bears. At the end of the Nash act Florence let out a deafening scream—and then died. The last line, however, was a soft one, spoken by Mary.

Well, the Nash turn was ruined at the opening matinee because the bears became boisterous back stage, but the sisters checked that up to a bad break.

On returning to the theater that night they found a note from Mr. Robinson. It read:

"Dear Miss Nash: Please have your sister cut out that terrible screaming at the end of your act, as it annoys my bears terribly."

LOWELL SHERMAN IN ROMANTIC LEAD

Lowell Sherman will have the male lead opposite Ina Claire in Samuel Goldwyn's screen production of the Zoe Akins comedy success, to be known as "The Greeks Had a Name for Them."

Mr. Sherman will also direct the picture, serving in this dual capacity through an arrangement made by Mr. Goldwyn with William LeBaron, executive head of the RKO studios, to whom Sherman is under contract.

Ina Claire will be the first of the three ex-Follies ladies involved in the story. Jean Harlow the second and Carole Lombard, borrowed from Paramount, will be the third.

Sidney Howard has completed the adaptation and treatment and is now conferring with Mr. Sherman on production details.

MR. MORRIS SEEKS REALISM AT SEA

A stickler for realism, Chester Morris has just devoted 38 days to a double crossing of the Atlantic in search of authentic atmosphere for his next picture, in which he will portray the role of a modern pirate in white flannels. The story will be "Corsair," the Walton Green novel published recently.

When the star completed work in February on "The Bat Whispers," his last release, he was informed that his next effort would be "Corsair," so, being a thorough-going young man, he set out to capture its mood. With Mrs. Morris, the former Sue Kilborn, he went down to the Los Angeles docks and boarded the motorship Oakland, a freighter, which plies between the California port and Bremen, via the Panama Canal, and the next 33 days were spent in a lazy crossing of the ocean.

COUNTY ASKS ROAD COSTS

The Department of Public Works has been asked by the County Commissioners to prepare estimates of the cost of improving various roads requested by resident delegations at a hearing yesterday.

S. R. McClure, C. B. Guttridge and J. W. Hanna, representing the East Boroughs Improvement Association, requested new construction of Brinton road from East Pittsburgh to Edgewood and the extension of Braddock avenue through Swissvale and Rankin.

L. C. Clark and W. F. Vegeler requested the extension of Cedar boulevard from Cochran road to Mt. Lebanon Park, which would be an important link between Painter's Run road and the Wabash Railroad Tunnel.

Other improvements were requested on East Orchard avenue, Ross Township, and Perrysville avenue, between West View and Ross Township.

SUSPECT FREED IN SLAYING

SALT LAKE CITY, May 6. — (AP.) — Charles Peter was freed yesterday of a charge of first-degree murder in connection with the slaying, more than a year ago, of Mrs. Dorothy Moormeister, but County Attorney Matthew Cowley said he would file a new complaint against Peter after he had interviewed witnesses.

The charge was dismissed by City Judge James A. Stump when the county attorney failed to produce witnesses for a preliminary hearing and moved for additional time to organize his case. The judge held with the defense contention that Peter was entitled to an immediate hearing.

Mrs. Moormeister, wife of Dr. Frank Moormeister, was found dead beneath the wheels of her automobile on a country road near here, February 22, 1930.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Martha Mitchell Yost To Make Her Bow to Society June 26

With the return of the sun after a vacation of a week or two, everything is becoming brighter and brighter, outdoor sports are coming to the fore, and things are beginning to happen.

What's more, folks are beginning to plan for the days to come, particularly those in lovely June. One of the most anticipated events of that month will be the debut of Martha Mitchell Yost, charming young daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Walter Milton Yost, of Edgeworth.

The date for her debut has been changed from Saturday, June 27, to Friday, June 26, because of the Milligan-Wilson wedding on the 27th. And the bud's father and mother will present her at a tea in the Yost home.

Another debutante of 1931 will be Caroline Stewart Mitchell, vivacious daughter of the Harry L. Mitchells, of Marlborough avenue. Caroline will make her debut during that gayest of all gay seasons of the year, the Christmas holidays. Just now she's studying at the French School, New York.

Morrow Laughs At Nomination Quiz

Lissfelt Suggests Music Festival at Meeting Of Musical Club

"Why not a music festival in Pittsburgh?" J. Fred Lissfelt, music critic of the Sun-Telegraph, queried at the close of his address before the Tuesday Musical Club yesterday afternoon in the Twentieth Century Club. Mr. Lissfelt pointed out that Pittsburgh has the greatest number of nationalities with fine musical traditions, an orchestra of which one can now sincerely boast, choruses and, comparable to nothing in any other city, "Will Earhart's singing school children."

His talk, which was a fine and comprehensive discussion of music festivals, was given with most delightful informality. He led his large audience all over Europe and brought them back to the Cincinnati festivals and the Bach festivals at Bethlehem, Pa., which, he said, approach the European flavor.

Mr. Lissfelt's talk came as the last item on a full program, at the close of which but one thing remained—the introduction by the retiring president, Mrs. Arthur B. Siviter, of her successor, Mrs. Elmer W. Flaccus. She, with the nominating committee's entire ticket, was elected at the business session in the morning.

The post-luncheon program included, in addition to Mr. Lissfelt's talk, brief remarks by Dr. John G. Bowman, of the University of Pittsburgh; E. T. Whiter, president of the Stephen C. Foster Memorial Association, and Mrs. T. C. Donovan, president of the State Federation of Music Clubs; and some charmingly done musical numbers by Irene Miklinski, one of the club's scholarship winners; Miss Alberta Irvine and Miss Janet McMullen, with Helen Machette and Hulda Lefridge accompanying.

NEW IDEA SAVES SILK HOSE

Expensive at best, silk hose and undergarments are made doubly so by improper washing. A fashion expert has found a new, simple way to correct this.

She adds a tablespoonful of Energine to every quart of lukewarm, soapy water. Then she washes and rinses the articles as usual. The addition of Energine removes all the body excretions that soften and rot silk.

The results are amazing. Not only does this method give new cleanliness and freshness with original color revived but actually gives longer life to hose and undergarments. Try this new method of adding Energine to soapy water. It's easier and quicker than just soap and water alone, means less rubbing and insures extra wear that will surprise you.

Energine is unexcelled, also, for quickly removing all dirt and grease spots from dresses, hats, gloves, shoes, etc. Large can 35 cents at any drug store.

SMART COLOR COMBINATIONS FEATURE THE LATEST SUITS

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, May 6.—Buy color in bi-color combinations if you would have a really smart suit. For the suit that boasts a plain skirt with a jacket of another color with lapels or trimming to match the hue of the skirt is inordinately smart just now. So is the skirt of black and white small check with a plain jacket of black broadcloth. These costumes express so well the trim, trig look of the suit and are essentially youthful and elegant. We have seen many of them here during the past few days and dare say that this fashion is one of the highlights of the fashionable street scene at home. For it is a mode beloved by most women, many of whom wear it even when it is not the last word in the current sartorial scheme. We believe that those of us who are wearing such a suit for the first time will be loath to cheerfully abandon it until it is ordained again by the mode. Anyway, we hope not.

WORTH HAS BEEN extremely successful with his suits this year and he has run the gamut from the classic navy blue tailleur to the little bi-color suit, of which we have just made mention. We have had sent to you a sketch of his expression in the latter style, and a most successful number it has been, too. The navy blue tailored skirt is woolen, is cut slightly flaring and it is worn with a fitted short jacket of blue, red and gray tweed. The color, lapels and belt are of plain navy blue to tone with the skirt. Diagonal piecings set in at the back of the jacket are so arranged as to accentuate the flare of the line below the waist.

BLACK SATIN both lustrous and dull is with us again and is seen both in the afternoon and after dark. Sketched is a new Lelong model which makes good use of dull black satin. The decolletage is pointed at the back and front and is bordered with encrustations. Similar pieces, encrusted, are used on the skirt, starting at the waistline above the peplum and forming double panels down the front. There is a shirred flounce.

LIBERAL MAYOR WINS IN RENO

RENO, Nev., May 6.—(AP.)—Mayor E. E. Roberts, liberal leader of Reno, and all his administrative officers, except one councilman, were returned to office for four-year terms at a municipal election yesterday.

The Mayor, who is the father-in-law of Walter Johnson, of baseball fame, decisively defeated two opponents, Howard S. Doyle and Milburn R. Gregory, taking a majority of the votes in five of the six wards. The election was non-partisan.

It will be Roberts' third successive term as mayor of this Nevada city, nationally known for its quick divorces and open gambling resorts. In his campaign the mayor defended Nevada's divorce and gambling laws and attacked prohibition.

Speaking from the pulpit of the Reno Methodist Church at the invitation of the pastor, Mayor Roberts urged the placing of open barrels of "good corn whisky" on the city streets to free the community of bootleggers.

'LEGS' WITNESS DISAPPEARS

CATSKILL, N. Y., May 6.—(INS.)—Another of the state's key witnesses in the investigation of the shooting of Jack (Legs) Diamond, Manhattan and Greene County racketeer, had disappeared today.

He is Robert Lucas, 36, formerly of Passaic, N. J., bartender in the Aratoga Inn, where Diamond was shot, and one of the few witnesses willing to tell Attorney General John J. Bennett, Jr., about the shooting. Lucas, it was learned, has been missing for more than a week. He was last seen leaving the Greene County courthouse here after being questioned.

At the same time that Lucas was questioned by the district attorney, Marion Roberts, Diamond's friend, likewise was interrogated. She, too, has disappeared.

Diamond is under arrest in Albany General Hospital, with two state troopers constantly on guard inside the room. Technically, he is "in jail." But even a prisoner in jail is allowed to see his wife, Prior maintains. Hospital attendants said Diamond was "progressing satisfactorily."

TELL IT TO SALLY

By SALLY MARTIN

Should a Wife Have Hair Cut to Suit Herself?

Hair seems to be cutting capers with the gals these days . . . strange as it may seem . . .

First, it was Agnes, who had long flowing locks—and wanted to keep them—but who was beginning to wonder if maybe they weren't putting a cramp in Romance. For one gent had snorted, "Why don't you shear off that mop of yours, and look up-to-date?" Which was a pretty good proof that woman's "Crown of Glory" wasn't going over so big in 1931.

Wants to Cut Tresses

But now—well, now here's Jane, with a husband who threatens to have the jitters if she does use the shears on her well upholstered head.

"Dear Sally:

"I guess I shouldn't be writing this. I know your column ought to be reserved for more weighty problems . . . but I feel that maybe there are more people than I know about who are worried about the same problem that has me up in the air.

"I am married—my husband and I haven't much else besides each other, but for the present that seems to be enough, since we are both still 'delirious' about each other. We celebrated our first anniversary not so long ago. So you see my happiness isn't really involved in this problem I have. And now that I'm writing about it, it does seem as if maybe it is silly and trivial, but I'd just like to know what you . . . and the gang . . . think about it.

"It's about my hair. When we met, it was bobbed. But just to experiment, I let it grow, and now it is quite long—and quite uncomfortable. I want to cut it off again, but Tom doesn't want me to.

Should He Object?

"Of course, he has done so many things for me that I suppose my granting him that favor doesn't seem like much. But I know that both my personal appearance and my comfort would be enhanced if I were to cut it off. Long, it makes me look much older, although I suppose that isn't a good point for argument now because I am still pretty young!

"I really don't want to irk Tom in any way, and long hair seems to be an issue with him . . . But the question is (does it sound silly?), do you think he should object to me cutting my hair when it would add to both my comfort and my appearance? Do you think a man has a right to say what his wife shall or shan't do with her own hair?

"I don't want to criticize him, but it seems kind of funny for him to get so angry when I talk about cutting it off.

"If I had more courage, or if I didn't consider his wishes as much as I do, I'd go and have my long locks sheared off . . . now . . . tonight . . .

"And then I'd go home and wait for results!

Afraid of Risk

"Should I risk doing that? If I do, I'm afraid that he might be liable to resume habits that he has given up for me.

"Should I cross his wishes, and cut my hair and be comfortable? Or must I heed his pleas, and carry a pound or hairpins on my head for the rest of my life?

"JANE."

Well, how about it? Should she? Or shouldn't she?

Does a married woman's hair belong to her? Or does it belong to her husband?

And has he a right to boss what she does with it?

Has he a right to make her uncomfortable, just because he has a long-hair complex?

And if he thinks he has—— Should she defy him . . . and do what she please? Or must mamma mind papa?

What do you think, Mr. McPherson—Missis Sweeney?

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Both of Them May Send Congratulations to Both

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you please tell me the proper thing to do when one receives a betrothal card? My husband and the groom-to-be are associated in the same line of business — different companies, however, and we have some social contact with his family. While we have never had an intimate friendship with the bride-to-be, we have known her and her family for the past eight years.

2. In case of a death in these same families mentioned, please tell me the correct thing to do. This question has come to me several times of late and I have been just a bit undecided.

CONSTANT READER.

1. There is no rule as to what one should do when one receives a betrothal card, one's reaction depending on one's friendship with either or both of the couple. (As a matter of fact, betrothal cards are not in good form.)

In the case you mention, I think that your husband should write his congratulations to the groom-to-be, and it would be very pleasant for you to write your best wishes to the bride-to-be.

2. If you know the people well, leave your card and your husband's, as an evidence of your sympathy. Too, if your friendship warrants it, write a note asking if you may do anything to help in this dark hour. Anyway, write a note of sympathy, and, on the morning of the funeral, or the day before, if you wish, send a box of flowers with your card enclosed.

Enclose an Appreciative Little Note

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I wouldn't fail to read your column every day, as you certainly have come to my rescue many times and I am very grateful. Here is my problem:

I have a friend who is ill in a local hospital, and she has a trained nurse who is very kind to her. I would like very much to give this nurse a gift for her unfailing kindness. If this is proper, what should I say on a card, which I enclose?

A BOOSTER.

Thank you!

What an especially kind and thoughtful thing for you to think of doing, giving this nurse a symbol of your appreciation of her goodness to your friend! Instead of enclosing a card with your gift, I suggest that you write a little note, telling her of your appreciation of her unfailing kindness, of her excellent service, and of her friendly attention. Just a sentence or two will express this.

At the Son's Confirmation

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My son is to be confirmed in a few weeks and the event will be celebrated by a coupled affair from 2 to 7. Would it be correct for my husband, my daughter and myself to be formally dressed, as we are to receive?

S. O.

You and your daughter would appropriately wear afternoon dresses of some charming type . . . chiffon, either plain or flowered, or a crepe of some kind. It shouldn't be an evening dress. Your husband would wear either formal day clothes . . . cutaway coat and dark striped trousers . . . or a dark blue suit.

Be Wise With Dimes and Minutes, Is Fay King's Advice to Foolish Men

IF YOU WOULD PAY TWO DOLLARS FOR THE TWENTY THINGS YOU BOUGHT FOR TWENTY DIMES, THEY ARE WORTH THAT YOU STAND A CHANCE TO MAKE ONE HUNDRED DOLLARS ON EVERY DOLLAR YOU INVEST!
GEE! IT'S ALMOST 4.30, TOO LATE TO DO ANYTHING MORE GUESS I'LL SIGN OFF, AN' CALL IT A DAY!
THE SHARK KNOWS THAT BIG PROMISES ARE BETTER BAIT THAN SMALL BUT SURE PROFITS
FAY-KING

By FAY KING

We often hear persons of small means say that a rich man thinks more of a dime than they do of a dollar.

Rightly so! He also thinks more of a minute than they do of an hour.

Where one finds dollars one also finds sense—regarding time and money.

Many of us too willingly spend 10 dimes for 10 things we would hesitate to buy for one dollar in a heap.

We also waste an hour attending to what could be accomplished in a few minutes of businesslike procedure.

No profit is too small to interest a rich man if it is certain.

Madge Has Difficulty Restraining Her Temper

I have often wondered whether Lillian does not have some motive behind the gibing about Philip Veritzen which she occasionally aims at me. But whatever her reason, her teasing annoys me so much that I have to remind myself forcibly of her loyal friendship for me and the many kindly services she has rendered me, lest I should fly out at her.

Waiting until I could control my voice before answering, I said casually:

"Mr. Veritzen's artistic ideas are the one thing——"

"You can have anything else but," Lillian finished. "All right, I'm not insisting you send for him. But I just wanted to slip you a friendly tip to be prepared for him. He's one ubiquitous, also gregarious soul, our Phil, and he's stayed put over there at that hotel longer than I ever thought he would. He hasn't paid but one call here, has he?"

"No, thanks be to Allah," I intoned. "And he only stayed but a few minutes."

"He's been over to Helena's several times. She's quite flattered. Great theatrical producers don't sit on her doorstep every day as they do on yours, so she's making him royally welcome. But I'll bet he shows up some time today with some flamboyant scheme or other."

"Why do you want to spoil the morning?" I said pettishly. "Let's go on with our planning. Are you and Harry going to be here for dinner or at Helena's?"

"She's asked us," Lillian said doubtfully.

"And I hope you've accepted," I said laughing, knowing the reassurance she needed. "I wish she'd invited more of the family. The fewer we have for dinner tonight the better I shall be pleased. What say, Katherine—suppose we have an early old-fashioned supper about five o'clock? Then we can get Junior and Roderick off to bed earlier."

"How are you going to manage the other two. They ought to be in bed by eleven so that the Tigers can get at the basement, but if there's a party here—"

"I have a scheme," I said, "but the first thing I'm going to do is to tire them out. "I'm going to get them up now, all four of the boys and keep them so busy today with the decorations, putting up and trimming of the tree and bringing in the Yule log that they'll be glad to crawl into bed when night comes."

"You mean you're going to let Junior and Roderick trim their own tree?" Lillian asked with disapproving incredulity in her voice.

"Not this year," I answered. "Nor as long as Junior is content to let it be trimmed for him. When it's no longer a surprise to be anticipated with zest then I'll let him trim his own. That isn't true this year, however. So we're going to send Junior and Roderick to bed as soon after supper as possible. They will have seen the tree brought into the house and set up in the living room, and then they'll trot off to bed, while Bill and Henry trim the tree."

"With suggestions, I hope," Lillian commented dryly.

"If I can manage them adroitly," I said. "But it is to be their tree. I'm not trimming it for——"

"For Phil Veritzen," Lillian agreed promptly. "I'm glad to hear it. I thought perhaps you thought it would be a graceful tribute to him."

"If you mention that man's name again today," I threatened, as I rose abruptly, "I'll forget that it's Christmas and give you what you've needed for some time. Will you excuse me? I must wake the boys."

"Don't be mad by me," she called after me coaxingly, and though I smiled back at her, I had hard work to control the very real irritation I felt toward her. I had enough uneasiness as to Phil Veritzen's possible behavior on the morrow, I told myself, without having the possibility of his intrusion upon the busy day so forcibly thrust upon me.

I forgot all about her prophecy and the man it concerned before many minutes had passed, for I was plunged "head first," to quote my mother-in-law, into the multitudinous last things of the day. Although I did little actual work, I was called from one room to another almost constantly, it seemed to me. Katie wanted my opinion of the turkeys and the proper amount of seasoning to put in the dressing, although Mother Graham already had laid down the law upon this point. But my little maid whispering that she had kept back some of the sage until I should taste it, insisted upon my final judgment before seasoning the "stuffing" and putting it away in an immense can ready for use the next morning. Mother Graham called me at least once an hour to assist her with the tying up of her Christmas presents, a task she had left until the last moment, and Mary and Noel, busy with the boys over the Christmas greens almost constantly appealed to me for advice.

Only Katherine asked no questions of me. Lillian went early to Helena's to help her through the day, and I was gratefully conscious of my little kinswoman's unobtrusive presence and efficient help through all the exciting and strenuous day.

It was after luncheon when the boys had just finished twining the stair railings with the ropes of laurel and ground pine during the week, and with Bill mounted upon a stepladder, were preparing to hang festoons of green from the hall chandeliers that the doorbell rang and Philip Veritzen appeared.

"Ah!" he said, when I had greeted him. "I am just in time, I see. You are hanging the mistletoe."

Household Hints

If lemons are placed in a fruit jar filled with cold water, the top screwed tightly on, they will not dry and may be kept fresh for weeks.

For soot stains use kerosene, chloroform, ether, benzine, gasoline or carbon tetrachloride to remove stains left by soot or lampblack; all are equally good.

That second (and subsequent) opening of the glue bottle often is a difficult problem. After it has been opened the first time, substitute a cork on which you have rubbed a little fat or oil for the one that comes with the bottle.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Set Camp in Hygienic Place

Within the past two years there has been a definite increase in the number of cases of malaria in the United States. Many sections of the country, which have been free from this disease for many years, are now reporting malaria.

Dr. Copeland

Before it became known that the anopheles mosquito carried the parasite responsible for this disease, malaria was a common ailment. Not only did it thrive in North America, but it was found in all countries where this type of mosquito thrived.

After careful study of the anopheles mosquito, as to its mode of living habits, much was accomplished. With removal of this pest and measures of protection taken against their return, the disease soon became a rarity. It was found only in communities and countries where sanitary measures could not be taken.

The disease is usually given its old name of "chills and fever." The first sign is a severe chill, followed by a high fever and headache.

The attacks are periodic in their nature. They come and go, the attacks usually recurring every other day. In some cases the fever is continuous, but in the majority of cases it rises and falls, first ushered in by a chill.

Some of the authorities claim the recent outbreaks of this disease are due to increased automobile travel. They claim that many automobilists camp in unhygienic spots, where the anopheles mosquito is still an inhabitant. In traveling from one state to another, they carry the parasite with them and thus transmit the disease to a large population.

In the state of Illinois malaria has increased, as has the automobile traffic. On the other hand, where automobile traffic has decreased, malaria has increased as it has in other states. I think we must search farther for the definite cause of the increase of malaria.

Anyhow, we must declare a new war on the anopheles mosquito and in this way control the disease. This can be done only by careful screening of houses and the destruction of the mosquito-breeding places. These are the fresh water pools, stagnant pools and infected swamps.

Everybody living in regions where the dangerous mosquito is common must protect themselves and others by adequate sanitary measures. During the malarial season, persons living in infected regions must arm themselves against the disease.

Let us determine that next season we are to do better. Let us renew our attacks against the pests which carry this uncomfortable ailment.

When a Child is FEVERISH, CROSS, UPSET

Colic, gas, sour belching, frequent vomiting, feverishness, in babies and children, generally show food is souring in the little digestive tract.

When these symptoms appear, give Baby a teaspoonful of Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. Add it to the first bottle of food in the morning. Older children should be given a tablespoonful in a glass of water. This will comfort the child—make his stomach and bowels easy. In five minutes he is comfortable, happy. It will sweep the bowels free of all sour, indigestible food. It opens the bowels in constipation, colds, children's ailments. Children take it readily because it is palatable, pleasant-tasting.

Learn its many uses for mother and child. Write for the interesting book, "Useful Information." Address The Phillips Co., 170 Varick St., New York, N. Y. It will be sent FREE.

In buying, be sure to get genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. Doctors have prescribed it for over 50 years.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

Dryness of the hair is due to insufficient secretions from the sebaceous glands. There should be a hot oil treatment before the shampoo, and a small quantity of mineral or olive oil frictioned into the scalp afterwards. Vaseline will serve.

Tired eyes will freshen by bathing with water as hot as can be endured, and by placing over the eyes compresses of cloths which have been wrung out of ice cold water. Granulated lids may be due to some constitutional upset. Medical attention is advisable.

Oatmeal bags are nice for oily skin. Oatmeal produces a dull finish. Fill cheesecloth bags, small ones, with oatmeal. Dip in warm water, and use in place of the washcloth. They can be employed only twice. More convenient than sprinkling the meal on the washcloth. Larger bags for the bath should have a small quantity of powdered castile soap added, and a few drops of oil of lavender flowers to make 'em smell sweet.

Soap acts as a blackhead dissolvent. A blackhead is a plug of grease, tipped with atmospheric dust. A casual application of soap doesn't penetrate, but melted soap rubbed in with the finger tips and permitted to remain on the skin for five minutes does the business. While the soapy application is present, wring a washcloth out of hot water, and use as a compress. Rinse with tepid water, then with cold.

Doff your hats, girls, for the sake of your hair. When the chapeau is worn all day there is no evaporation of vapors thrown off by the pores of the scalp. Deposits of sebaceous oils and salty substances produced by sweat glands gather on the skin surface, inviting dandruff, which in turn attracts bacteria. No telling then what may happen. Hair loves air and sunlight. When it doesn't have them, but is kept blanketed, it goes limp and slinky, assumes an expression of despair, loses its pristine youthfulness and amiability.

The LOUDSPEAKER

By LOUIS REID

NEW YORK, May 6.—There's been more response—in the mails—to Sir Oliver Lodge's radio talk on immortality than to any other foreign broadcast yet aired.

We are unable to detect the superiority of the Garde Republicaine Band of France to Sousa's Band or even the U. S. Marine Band . . . Bands are at their best when they confine themselves to band music and leave the symphonies to the fiddlers . . . Opera singers are forever airing complicated arias, but they never forget to include a Stephen Foster song in their programs. Stephen Foster songs bring the mail.

The words, "I love you," most reliable on stage and screen, are seldom heard on the radio save in song . . . Maybe it's been found few people can say them convincingly . . . The expression, "listeners-in," has been pretty much abandoned in the radio world . . . Television men are now trying to popularize "lookers-in." They won't get far . . . Electrical wizards are making life more and more complex. They're now talking of something called "teletaction, or the electrical transmission of feeling" . . . Wonder if we'll ever have a song, "I have a teletaction for you."

No sports event is more unexciting on the microphones than a crew race. . . . Even ping pong causes a quicker heart beat. . . . Gifts to radio entertainers from the unseen audience range from bananas to monkeys. . . . Concert sopranos find no trouble getting radio contracts when they change their style to crooning. . . . Crooning was originally identified with lullabies. Now it is employed in every type of song from hill billy ballads to blues. . . . "St. Louis Blues" still remains, in our mind, the huckleberry of all blues.

Orchestra conductors are doing things to Ravel's "Bolero"—combining it with "Peanut Vendor." It's a new way of reviving interest in "Peanut Vendor." . . . Any fire that gives promise of being a conflagration finds the broadcasters rushing their apparatus to the scene. . . . They learned what a thrill a big fire can be to the ears when they aired the Columbus (O.) prison holocaust. . . . Talks on unemployment are now almost as numerous as those on prosperity used to be. . . . The most successful sea story broadcasts are strangely those presented by people who never sailed the seas.

"The Rise of the Goldbergs" is now the title of a book. These sketches of Jewish life in New York have also been on the stage. All that remains for them now is grand opera . . . Practically everybody responsible for the Empire State Building has been led to the microphones save the steel-workers and the riveters . . . The gaekwars of R-K-O are the busiest of the broadcasters in hunting down unusual spots for their radio programs . . . Strange that dance maestros don't go in more for all-string orchestras.

Freeman Gosden's fame as radio's foremost actor has not been seriously threatened as yet by players recruited from Broadway. . . . Cross-examinations in the manner of the court room are getting more and more common on the radio . . . The loudspeaker has pretty definitely destroyed the old-time American trait of patience . . . Jascha Heifetz still holds the distinction of having received the largest sum ever paid an American artist for a radio appearance.

So much that is startling has tumbled out of the loudspeakers within the last year that the broadcasters, a spy tells me, are growing more and more indifferent to the possibility of snaring Kreisler.

SIDEWALKS of PITTSBURGH

By William Pfarr

William Pfarr

Charlie Schwab, who used to give piano and violin lessons in Braddock at 50 cents for 30 minutes, is telling his story of the farmer who wanted to sell a cow... When Schwab wanted to know whether the cow gave milk, the farmer replied: "Well, Charlie, she's a cow with a good disposition and if she's got any milk she'll certainly give it to you"... According to Charlie Slagle, hunter and fisherman, Indians used to hide behind that big rock near the station at Parker's Landing and bow-and-arrow the early settlers as they boated up and down the Allegheny... That gray-haired young fellow you saw bouncing a rubber ball while he strolled along Sixth avenue the other afternoon was Honus Wagner... Every month or so Gov. Pinchot sends form letters to a lot of citizens over the state asking them to support this or that...

That big numbers baron on the Hill is a business man, too. . . . He keeps in touch with the racket throughout the country by having a clipping bureau send him every item of racket news carried in all the papers in the nation . . . They have a volunteer fire department at Westinghouse, and its members may live, board free, in what is practically a firemen's dormitory on company property . . . The other day, during a drill, they stretched the hose across the railroad tracks, and a darned old engine came along and cut it in two . . .

There's a lot of truth in the new saying that everything comes to him who is a notary public . . . Take the case of Bill Watson, of the West Penn Power, who is a notary public on the side . . . He has a sign on his porch proclaiming that he's a notary . . . And a few midnights ago, a couple banged on his door until he answered, and then asked: "Will you marry us?"... The funny part of it is Watson didn't know whether he could, so he told them to come back the next day...

And Harry Stanley, the advertising man... He's one of the thousands who save their traffic tags until they get a collection, then usually throw them away... But not so long ago he was stricken with pangs of conscience, and he went out to Traffic Court and paid for all the accumulated tags... Three hours later he was tagged for parking in front of a fire plug...

And Lawrence Wheeler . . . Two months ago he got the mumps . . . His children took them from him . . . But a month ago his children, having recovered from the mumps, neatly caught the whooping cough and neatly gave it to him . . . His philosophy: Mumps and whooping cough are not child's play . . . not the way he plays them . . .

Jack McCann heard of a friend's wife who was going to Europe . . . And she had just returned from there . . . Asked McCann: "Did she forget something?" . . . What the unemployed bread-liners need is a grapevine . . . At the Advertising Club's exhibit last week in the William Penn they had a doughnut-making machine, and they gave out free doughnuts and coffee . . . WILL ROGERS SAYS

BEVERLY HILLS Cal., May 6.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

There is one thing about this depression, it has offered every man, woman and child in America one hundred guesses as to how to end it. President Hoover used up one of his guesses when he spoke to one of those "men's sewing clubs." He said we would "have good times if everybody disarmed." Why, the only people that are drawing salary now, is the army and navy. What does he want to do, put them among the unemployed?

Police Radio Service to Aid Nearby Boroughs

SUMMER CRIMINAL COURT TERM SET

CITY TO TAKE REPORTS OF CRIMES

News Will Be Flashed to Cruising Autos Starting Manhunt for Outlaws

Boroughs near the city will be given additional police protection by the new Department of Public Safety radio broadcasting station on Mt. Washington, as the result of legislation approved by a councilmanic committee yesterday.

James M. Clark, director of the safety department, in informing Council the broadcasting station would be put into hourly and bulletin service use as soon as all the police radio-equipped automobiles are delivered, asked advice on the matter of permitting boroughs to hook up with telephones.

News of criminal acts perpetrated in the boroughs could be flashed to the radio station in Mt. Washington police station immediately and orders for a dragnet issued.

The plan would work out for benefit of city and boroughs alike, Clark said.

Boroughs are now connected with the State Police teletype system in Western Pennsylvania as well as other parts of the state. Headquarters for this district are located in the Allegheny County Detective Bureau.

JUDGES WILL DECIDE ALL CASES

Defendant May Waive Jury Trial for Quick Action in New Legal Procedure

District Attorney Andrew T. Park announced today it has been definitely decided to hold summer sessions in Criminal Court during July and August.

In addition to holding plea day on Thursdays, as has been customary in summer, arraignment day will be held on Tuesdays. The June grand jury, District Attorney Park said, will be recalled the last week in July, probably for only one day, to clear the calendar of all jail cases except murder cases. Mr. Park said:

"In order to carry out our program, it will be necessary for persons whose cases are heard in July by the grand jury to sign a waiver, giving the grand jury the right to take up their cases. Where bills are ignored, the discharge of the prisoners will follow.

DEFENDANT TO DECIDE

"If a defendant elects to have his case disposed of by the court, he will be permitted to do so. It will be the first time in the history of the Allegheny County courts that a June grand jury has ever been recalled for the purpose stated."

A prisoner who asks to have his case disposed of, it was announced, will go before the court where testimony will be heard by the judge and the case determined on its merits by the jurist.

District Attorney Park explained that any defendant has the right to challenge the grand jury in all cases but a murder case. Consequently it will be necessary for the waiver to be obtained, because if a man is held for the next term of court in July, the next term will not be until September and the waiver is necessary in order to avoid any technicality, Park continued:

"This will be an experiment, but I believe that it will accomplish the desired results—to free or dispose of a large number of cases which have in past years been accumulating in summer time."

TWO JUDGES ON DUTY

District Attorney Park said that no doubt it will be possible to release many prisoners on their own recognizance, should they desire a trial by jury. It also will give defendants an opportunity to try and obtain reduced bail for the offenses for which they are charged. There will be no jury trials during July and August.

Judges James H. Gray and Sylvester J. Snee will sit in Criminal Court during July and August to dispose of all cases, except murder charges, where defendants elect to be heard by the court.

FLEEING BANDIT DROWNS IN OHIO

A holdup man was drowned in the Ohio River near Groveton, Robinson Township, early today as he fled from police after he and a companion had robbed a Pittsburgh taxicab driver of $7.

Driver Mishick

Cornered just beyond the Groveton Station of the Pittsburgh and Lake Erie Railroad, one of the Negroes, who said he was James Mayfield, 30, of 3029 Penn avenue, surrendered after police fired a dozen or more shots at him.

His companion, identified by Mayfield as Edward Penn, 30, also of Pittsburgh, leaped into the river and attempted to swim across.

In mid-stream he threw up his hands and sank, while police were hunting for a boat to pursue him.

The cab driver, Lon Mishick, 27, of 2327 Columbia avenue, Swissvale, told police he had picked up the two men on a call to the Hill district.

In Coraopolis, Mishick said, Mayfield shoved a gun into his ribs, took the $7 from his pockets and forced him into the rear seat, Penn taking the wheel.

The pair abandoned the car after a tire went flat when the bandit-driver ran into a curbing.

Mishick notified Coraopolis police and Sergt. Charles Schaffer and Patrolman A. D. Newell, with a milk truck driver who had given them the tip as to the robbers' whereabouts, sighted the robbers near the Groveton Station.

Mayfield surrendered after Schaffer and Newell sent a volley of bullets close to him. Penn dove into the underbrush and was not seen again until the splash he made entering the river attracted the officers' attention.

Schaffer and Newell started boats dragging the river to recover the body.

ASLEEP IN AUTO WITH GUN; HELD

Claiming to be a son of a prominent resident of Somerset County, a man docketed as Dwight Griffith, 23, of Somerset, and Frank Brogher, 39, also of Somerset, were held for further investigation in Central Police Court today. Asleep in an auto the license plate of which was marked "legislative," the police said, the two men were found in Penn avenue, near Stanwix street, yesterday afternoon and in a car pocket were a revolver and blackjack.

Before Magistrate Leo Rothenberg this morning, Griffith said he acts as collector for his father, a lumber dealer of Somerset County, and for that reason carried the weapons. He also had the owner's card for the automobile. The men said they felt drowsy after driving from Somerset and fell asleep. Police today are checking with Somerset authorities to verify the story told by Griffith.

The proposed school would be a modern building, equipped to provide all educational facilities maintained by a first class high school, and will include courses in industrial arts, Dickey said.

At present this district has only one two-year high school, at Braun.

Foch Planned March To Rhine, But Plea for Armistice Interfered

By MARSHAL FERDINAND FOCH

Commander-in-Chief of the Allied Armies During the Closing Phases of the World War.

CHAPTER XXXIX.

Thanks to the activity of everybody, the Lorraine attack was quickly prepared. It was to start on November 14, 1918, with "28 divisions of infantry and three divisions of cavalry supported by a considerable mass of artillery and by about 600 tanks."

It was to cover a width of 20 miles, which would be added to a battle already being vigorously pursued along a 200-mile front. It was to be launched in a new direction, where there was no possibility of its encountering strong enemy forces.

It was the march toward the Rhine, in the direction of Berlin, once more confirmed for the ensemble of the Allied forces by a convergence of repeated efforts growing greater every day. Such a march along such a route could not fail to bring about the definite decision of the war.

At the beginning of November the line of the Scheldt, below Valenciennes and as far as Ghent, constituted an obstacle in front of the left wing of the Allied armies, while in Champagne the strong defenses of the Serre were soon to confront a portion of our center.

By pushing forward the actions confided to the American 1st Army and the French 4th Army on the left bank of the Meuse, we would be outflanking the line of the Serre from the east by advancing the French 1st Army and the British right north of the Oise.

This last movement would also turn the line of the Scheldt from the south, while the Flanders group of Armies would soon be facing in the north in front of Ghent. All that was needed then was to accentuate the movements of these groups of forces.

From November 1st to the 5th, the American 1st Army and the French 4th Army, by continuous wide attacks, had successfully pursued their outflanking maneuvers, and on the last-named date had reached the line Le Chesne-Beaumont-Stenay.

On October 29, Field Marshal Haig, in conformity with these directions, ordered his 4th, 3rd and 1st Armies to be ready to re-

COUNCIL BACKS GARDEN PLAN

Approval of a plan to permit the Congress of Women's Clubs to supervise city vacant lots for garden purposes by the needy and unemployed was given by City Council yesterday on the request of C. C. Hamilton, of the Union Bank Building.

Meanwhile the Bureau of City Property has conducted survey of amount of city land available, according to E. J. Foley, chief clerk. Nearly 1,500 lot are ready.

Foley said persons wanting to start gardens would be allocated land by calling at his office in the City-County Building.

The garden plan, resembling the project carried out to raise vegetables throughout the summer months started in 1918, during the World War, and was revived to create an additional food supply for the jobless here at the present time.

Pittsburgher Rid of Parrot Which Held Up Liner

Charles J. Rosenbloom, of 1036 Beechwood boulevard, came back to Pittsburgh today without his parrot "Sammy" which delayed the docking of the liner Aquitania at New York 15 minutes last night until the parrot, a loquacious bird, proved its citizenship.

Rosenbloom said he had given it to New York friends, adding:

"I've had enough of it."

Health officials of the immigration service held up the docking of the liner on its return from a four-day trip to Bermuda until Rosenbloom proved ownership. Rosenbloom said that the parrot was the gift of a Pittsburgh friend and had been presented to him shortly after the liner's departure for the southern resort. The gift card bore the legend:

"Try and talk back to this."

Other Pittsburghers returning were: Mr. and Mrs. Carl Kaufman, guests of Rosenbloom; Mr. and Mrs. Joseph N. Mackrell and Mr. and Mrs. Edward Diamond.

Abolition of $1 Parking Fines Here Sought

(This is the sixth of a series of articles on proposed changes in the Pennsylvania motor code, now pending before the Legislature. The stories were prepared by the Pittsburgh Motor Club for the Sun-Telegraph.)

Changes proposed for the state motor code and now under consideration by the Legislature would, among other things, abolish the $1 parking law violation fines now effective in Pittsburgh.

The code, as it now stands, forbids parking of autos on a highway in rural districts, within 15 feet of a fire hydrant, in front of a fire station, in front of a private driveway, within 25 feet of curb lines at an intersection or within 15 feet of property lines if there are no curbs.

Violation of these rules are punishable by $10 fines or five-day jail sentences.

All other parking regulations are left to the municipality.

The proposed amendments of the motor code would require $10 fines or five-day jail sentences for the following parking violations:

Within an intersection. On a crosswalk. Between a safety zone and the adjacent curb. Within 30 feet at the approach to any official flashing "stop" signal. On a sidewalk.

Alongside any street or highway excavation or obstruction, or opposite the same unless a clear and unobstructed portion of the roadway, at least 20 feet in width, remain of the main roadway.

On the roadway side of any vehicle parked of stopped at the curb or edge of the highway.

At any place where official traffic signs prohibit.

Within 50 feet of the nearest rail or a steam or electric railroad crossing.

Where parking would prevent the free movement of a street car.

PUBLIC HEARING ON FIREWORKS CONTROL ARRANGED

COMPROMISE PLAN UP IN COUNCIL

Bill Would Permit Sale of All But Major Explosives By Dealers Under License

A public hearing—one of a series extending over a period of years—will be held by City Council next Wednesday on the new compromise ordinance regulating sale and use of fireworks within city limits, President John S. Herron said today.

The ordinance is a compromise between stringent steps advocated by Councilman Robert Garland and a "wide open" law. It was introduced by Herron.

Sale of all except major explosives is permitted under a license from the Department of Public Safety and allows use of all except large pyrotechnic displays without a license.

PROPOSED STRICT BAN

Garland's original ordinance, opposed by fireworks dealers here on the grounds that it would be conductive to "bootlegging," advocated strict ban of all types of July Fourth explosives.

Later he rescinded and proposed modification of the bill to permit public displays under Bureau of Fire supervision. An ordinance from the Safety Department has been in Council's hands for a year.

Garland had the support of the Western Pennsylvania Safety Council, superintendents of the public and parochial schools and various settlements in his fight for abolition of the explosives.

Representatives of these groups as well as the dealers, represented by Attorney Charles Sachs, will be asked to come to the hearing.

99 MISHAPS LAST YEAR

President Herron said:

"We probably had that many automobile accidents here during the past week. What about that?"

Garland replied:

"That doesn't have anything to do with fireworks."

Councilman Charles Anderson, declaring against the compromise ordinance, said there was nothing in it to prevent deaths, adding:

"The dealers say even sparklers are harmless. But that is not true. The wire gets hot and is liable to fire a child's clothing."

Storage and sale of pyrotechnics is provided for dealers who apply for a license and pay a $50 fee by June 15 in the new agreement. Sale would be permitted between June 25 and July 5.

Certain fireworks are eliminated, including highly-charged bombs, torpedoes, firecrackers more than four inches long, skyrockets weighing more than one pound, and cannon using gunpowder and

Capitalist Ideas Adopted by Reds For Efficiency

MOSCOW, May 6.—(AP.)—With the Soviet railroad and marine transport systems at a low ebb of efficiency, the government has taken steps to correct the situation in accordance with capitalistic ideas.

In addition to increasing the wages of railway workers, the government has inaugurated a new schedule which will put locomotive engineers on a piece-work basis. In the future they are to be paid according to the miles they run, and those who bring in their trains late will lose a certain portion of their wages.

He said:

"My commission is to clean up 10,000,000 mouths, and it's not a one-man job."

Dr. Philip Jay, of the University of Michigan, said research workers had learned dental decay seems to be an infectious disease, with some indication of being controlled by a balance diet.

Dr. Martin Dewey, president-elect of the American Dental Association, will be the principal speaker at a banquet tonight.

Dr. William J. Gies, in charge of the study of dental education for the Carnegie Foundation, and head of the department of biological chemistry of the college of physicians and surgeons at Columbia University, discussing the present status of research last night, said:

CLINICS URGED

"A health center is wholly incomplete if it has failed to have a good children's clinic in connection with a dental clinic."

Dr. E. J. G. Beardsley, clinic professor of medison at Jefferson Medical College, Philadelphia, speaking at a session yesterday, said:

"No surgical operation, except emergency work, should be undertaken until the mouth of the patient has been put in healthy condition and all infection removed."

MOTHER DEATH RATE FOUGHT

Seeking to reduce the high mortality among mothers and children, a new division of infancy and maternity has been created in the Bureau of Child Welfare of the City of Pittsburgh. This announcement gives a new significance to the observance of Mother's Day on Sunday. Ten nurses will be available for service.

Recent statistical records indicate that of the 16,000 mothers who die in child birth each year, 10,000 could have been saved with proper care. In Pittsburgh 74 mothers died in child birth in 1930, according to bureau records.

Dr. C. B. Maits, director of the Department of Health, today indorsed the movement and promised the co-operation of his department.

MANAGER PLAN DELAY SEEN

Legislation proposing the city manager plan for Pittsburgh will probably not be introduced during the present session of the Legislature at Harrisburg, according to information received here yesterday, from George Hallett, secretary of the Municipal Charter Association of Pennsylvania.

Hallett, in a letter to A. V. Snell, of the Allied Boards of Trade, said there was not much chance of getting favorable action on the measure this late in the session and it had been deemed advisable not to introduce the legislation now. It is understood Senator Frank J. Harris had been asked to introduce the measure but finally declined, but declaring he was in favor of the city manager plan. Earlier in the session Representative D. Glenn Moore, of Washington County, introduced a city manager plan which was defeated after a vigorous fight.

HUSBAND HELD IN SHOOTING

Ignatz Renczewicz, 38, of 1220 Third street, West Natrona, was held by county detectives today in connection with the slaying of John Chimok, 40, of 1246 Fourth street, West Natrona, whom he is alleged to have killed in front of the home of his estranged wife last night.

Renczewicz, who, police say, had been separated from his wife, Michalina, for several months, looked through the window of her home in Fourth street, and saw Chimok there last night. The husband knocked on the door and when Chimok opened it with a revolver in his hand, a fight began, according to Police Chief Paul Englemann and Patrolman John Lendenski. Renczewicz disarmed Chimok and shot him four times, police said.

GIMBELS Will Not Knowingly Be Undersold

CITY LAW AIDES DOUBLE SUM OF VIEWERS

Asked to Explain Why $12,000 Is Recommended For Damage Put at $5,500

A recommendation to pay damages amounting to more than three times the assessed value of the property affected has been sent back to the city law department by the Finance Committee of Council, with instructions to investigate further.

SUGGEST $12,000

The law department suggested that $12,000 be paid Brown to restore the property approximately to the condition prevailing before the street was graded.

The board of viewers on January 12 awarded Brown $5,560, but he appealed and the law department decided to recommend payment of $12,000. The property is assessed at $3,050.

The lot fronts 125 feet on Wyckoff street and is approximately 100 feet deep. The cut at the upper end of the lot is about two feet deep and increases in depth to about 18 feet at the lower end. The house now stands almost flush with the bank.

DEFENDS AWARD

Benjamin L. Steinberg, assistant city solicitor, who handled the case, said the amount recommended to Council might be somewhat high, but declared it would require that much to put the property in good condition.

At the viewers' hearing the owner said the fair market value of the property before the street was graded was $16,250, but afterward it was not more than $3,000.

FOCH PLANNED ALLIED DRIVE TO BERLIN

Enemy's Plea for Armistice Interrupts Plans for Invading Germany

sume their attacks beginning November 3.

Peace Movement Made

As a matter of fact, they resumed them on the 4th—and with complete success—strongly supported by the French 1st Army's movement on Guise. This was another coup de grace for the German Army.

Reeling under this blow and shaken by the uninterrupted advance of the Franco-American army on his left, the enemy, on the 5th, began a vast movement in retreat between the Mons canal and the Aisne at Bethel, during the following days it extended to the Meuse.

On the 8th, the Franco-Belgian troops of the Flanders Group of Armies captured the passages of the Scheldt between Ecke and Audenarde, accelerating the retirement of the enemy, who now, from the Dutch frontier to the Cotes de Meuse, was in full retreat.

The Allies sought to reach and cross the Rhine as soon as possible by pushing forward the battle and exploiting without a moment's halt the increasing disorganization of the enemy.

Once the barrier of the Rhine was conquered, Germany would be at the mercy of the Allies, even should they have to go as far as Berlin to prove it. These were the higher considerations which dictated the movements of the Allied armies as long as political action did not intervene to retard or modify the course of operations.

On October 6, 1918, through the intermediary of the German minister at Berne and the Swiss government, the government of Germany had already addressed a note to the President of the United States. It requested Mr. Wilson "to take into his hands the cause of peace, to inform all the belligerent nations that he had done so, and to ask them to send plenipotentiaries to open negotiations."

Conditions Outlined

It declared itself ready to enter into these negotiations on the basis of the program announced by President Wilson in his message to Congress of January 8, 1918, and in his subsequent utterances, particularly that of September 27, 1918.

Finally, urged by its state of pressing necessity, the German government asked for "the immediate conclusion of a general armistice on land, on sea and in the air."

President Wilson replied to this note on October 8th, stipulating as a condition preliminary to the conclusion of an armistice that the German armies be withdrawn immediately from all invaded territory.

The same day (October 8th) I took the initiative of sending Clemenceau a resume of the obligations which, in my opinion, should be imposed upon our foe "in case the question arose of stopping hostilities, even momentarily." These obligations were based of three essential principles:

"There must be no question of halting hostilities in what concerns the armies operating in France and Belgium unless the following conditions are fulfilled:

"1—LIBERATION OF THE COUNTRIES which, in violation of all law, have been invaded, viz: Belgium, France, Alsace - Lorraine, Luxemburg, with the return of their inhabitants.

"Therefore, the enemy should evacuate these territories within 15 days and repatriate their inhabitants immediately.

"First condition of the armistice.

"2—ASSURE A SUITABLE MILITARY BASE OF DEPARTURE, permitting us to pursue the war until the enemy's forces are destroyed in case peace negotiations fail.

"For this we need two or three bridgeheads on the Rhine, Reastadt, Strasbourg and Neu-Brisach. (The bridgehead would be a semi-circle traced on the right bank, with a radius of 18¾ miles raking the edge of the right bank as a center.) This also to be effected within 15 days.

"Second condition of the armistice.

Reparation Plan

"3—TAKE SECURITIES FOR REPARATIONS, exacted for damage done in the Allied countries, the bill for which to be presented at the time of the peace negotiations.

"For this purpose the territory on the left bank of the Rhine will be evacuated by the enemy's troops in not more than 30 days; this territory will be occupied and administered by Allied troops in concert with the local authorities until such time as peace shall have been signed.

"Third condition of the armistice.

"In addition the following supplementary conditions should be exacted:

"4—All the war material and supplies of every kind that cannot be removed by the German armies within the time limit prescribed must be left on the spot; their destruction is forbidden.

"5—Troops which have not evacuated the territory specified within the time limits fixed shall be disarmed and made prisoners of war.

"6—All railway material, including track and operation equipment, will be left where it is, and none of it destroyed. All seized Belgian and French material (or its numerical equivalent) shall be immediately returned.

"7—Military establishments of all sorts intended for the use of troops — camps, barracks, ammunition dumps, arsenals— must be left intact, it being forbidden to take away or destroy anything therein.

"8—The same applies to industrial establishments and factories of all sorts.

"9—Hostilities shall cease 24 hours from the day on which these conditions shall have been approved by the contracting parties."

Difference in Proposals

During the first two weeks of October, we were, to be sure, still too far from the Northern Rhine to consider its occupation under the terms of an immediate armistice; but we could assure to ourselves the possession of the Southern Rhine, which was much nearer to our armies; this would guarantee for us the certainty of maneuvering the obstacle, should hostilities be resumed.

Therefore, in the note of October 8th, I demanded the bridgeheads of Neu-Brisach, Strasbourg and Rastadt, which gave us the possibility of turning the defenses afforded by the central portion of the Rhine, in case it should become necessary to take up arms again after a suspension of operations at this moment.

As will be noted, there was considerable difference between these proposals and the sole condition of evacuation announced up to that time by the President of the United States. To be sure, it was apparent that President Wilson, in fixing a minimum without which there could be no armistice, had not thereby excluded such other stipulations as might seem necessary to the Allies.

It was this additional set of conditions that I developed before the representatives of the Allied governments, assembled in Paris at the Ministry of Foreign Affairs on the afternoon of October 9th.

In spite of M. Clemenceau's opinion—who preferred not to mix in the debate started between Berlin and Washington — Mr. Lloyd George, in order to avoid any subsequent misunderstanding, convinced his colleagues of the urgent necessity of sending President Wilson a message calling his attention to the insufficiency of his conditions.

Wilson Is Warned

These, said the British Prime Minister, would not prevent the Germans "from drawing such advantages from a suspension of the fighting as to be in a better military situation at the expiration of an armistice not followed by peace, than they were at the moment when hostilities had been interrupted.

"The chance would be given them to extricate themselves from a critical situation, save their war material, reform their units, shorten their front and retreat without loss of men to new positions which they would have time to select and fortify."

And he added:

"The conditions of an armistice cannot be fixed until consultation has been had among the military experts and after consideration of the military situation at the moment when negotiations are begun. . ."

Mr. Lloyd George was well advised in urgently demanding that this message be sent, for the Germans, as might be expected, did not fail to seize the unhoped-for opportunity offered them to extricate themselves honorably from their dilemma.

On October 12, Prince Max, of Baden, hastened to inform Washington that he was ready "to conclude an armistice in conformity with the evacuation proposals presented by the President."

But the latter, warned meanwhile by the Allies of the danger into which he risked being dragged, brought the pourparlers back to firmer ground. On October 14, he telegraphed the German chancellor:

". . . It should be clearly understood that the conditions of the armistice are matters that must be left to the judgment and advice of the military counselors of the United States and the Allied governments, and that no arrangement could be accepted by the government of the United States which did not secure, by means of absolutely satisfactory safeguards and guarantees, the maintenance of the present superiority of the armies of the United States and of the Allies on the battlefield."

Wanted Easier Terms

It would have been presumptuous to suppose that a German government, whatever its complexion, would accept with good grace these new exactions coming from the White House. The conditions imposed for the conclusion of an armistice, having struck it as suddenly too severe, it proceeded to ignore them.

The government of Berlin had been referred to the Allied generals; it could not object, but what it could do was to endeavor to lead them onto ground which it hoped might prove more favorable.

Why speak of military advantages? it asked. These are difficult to estimate; would it not be better, for casting up the balance sheet of the war's profit and loss, to take as a basis figure easy to establish—for instance, the total number of troops now confronting each other on the battlefield? . . .

"The German government," wrote the Chancellor under date of October 20, "in accepting the proposals relating to the evacuation of occupied territories, assumed that the methods to be pursued in this evacuation, as well as the conditions of the armistice, were to be left to the judgment of military advisors, and that the proportion now existing between the troops at the front would serve as a basis for the arrangements which would assure and guarantee these conditions.

"The German government leaves it to the President to draw up the conditions necessary for regulating details. It is confident that the President of the United States will countenance no demand that would be irreconcilable with the honor of the German nation and the making of a just peace . . ."

The trap set by the Prince of Baden could not fool the Allied governments. It was high time, nevertheless, that the conversations, which for two weeks had been under way between Berlin and Washington, should come to an end.

All they could accomplish would be to create confusion; moreover, it was undesirable that the Germans should come to consider President Wilson as a sort of arbiter between the Entente governments and the Central Powers. In such a game the Entente had everything to lose and nothing to gain; it was advisable, therefore, that without delay the military counselors be given the floor.

HUBBELL NEVER HAS DEFEATED VANCE

CARL HUBBELL has been far more successful than the average pitcher of his years since he joined the New York Giants in 1928. He has won a place in baseball's mythical hall of fame by hurling a no-hit, no-run game against the Pirates; he has won 46 games against 31 lost up to date, which spells success in practically 60 per cent of his engagements, and from time to time he has outpitched some of the National League's older and more renowned slabmen.

Carl Hubbell

But there is one thing which Hubbell seemingly just can't do, and that is beat Dazzy Vance. That's one distinction which has persistently eluded the Giant southpaw. Though this is his fourth season in the Heydler tent, he has yet to win a game from Brooklyn's star righthander. No matter how well he may be faring against other opposition, as soon as he runs into the Dazzler, down he goes. His 4-to-3 defeat in his first meeting of 1930 with Vance the other day was only another jolt from a persistent jinx.

BEATING THE BROOKLYN club under any conditions is a hard job for Hubbell. Other lefthanders are kept in pickle for the Robins and are particularly effective against them, as a rule, but it's different in Hubbell's case. He has defeated the Flatbush ballers only four times while losing to them on 10 occasions. But his real jinx spot is pitching against Vance.

Carl has lost every one of his six duels with Dazzy—one in 1928, one in 1929, three in 1930, and one this season. Nearly always the southpaw pitched well enough to have won any ordinary game. Once the score was 1 to 0, another time 2 to 1, again it was 4 to 3 and on another occasion 4 to 2. The 2-to-1 game lasted 10 innings, and in the 1-to-0 affair Hubbell was nosed out in the ninth after pitching eight scoreless rounds.

BUT HUBBELL ISN'T the only New York pitcher on whom Vance appears to have an edge. Dazzy beats the Giants more consistently than any other club in the league. The only game lost by the McGrawites in their last seven played was dropped to him.

Since the start of the 1928 season Vance has defeated New York 11 times in 16 games. He took three out of five from that club in 1928, two out of three in 1929, five out of seven in 1930, and won his only start against it this spring. Counting the final game he hurled against the McGrawmen in 1929, Dazzy has taken their measure seven times in his last nine encounters with them.

IT WAS WITH a record of having won five games in succession, a winning streak not beaten in either of the major leagues this season, that the league-leading Cardinals came here to open their four-game series with the Pirates this afternoon. However, the Bucs stopped them once before this season, the only time St. Louis has been defeated twice in a row, so it won't be surprising if the Ensmen get at least an even break in the series. Charge it up to the weird schedule if unfavorable weather knocks out any of the four games scheduled. Conditions were good Monday and yesterday and both clubs were idle. The teams should have been scheduled to start the series at least one day earlier, leaving an open date later in the week for a play-off in event of a postponement.

Charley Gehringer

THOUGH CHARLEY GEHRINGER, of the Tigers, the best second baseman in baseball, has been out of the Detroit lineup for more than a week on account of a lame throwing arm, he has managed to avoid interrupting an unusual run of consecutive play. In each of the seven games played by the Tigers during his stay on the bench he has appeared as a pinchhitter.

Those appearances kept intact Gehringer's playing streak, in which he has not missed a game since 1927. Up to today he has played in 602 consecutive games for the Detroit club. With Joe Sewell stopped last year at 1,103, the present major league leader in consecutive games is Lou Gehrig, of the Yankees, who has 905 straight to his credit to date. But the time when anybody may threaten Everett Scott's world record of 1,307 games without a miss appears to be still pretty far in the future.

IT TOOK SOME time for George Earnshaw to get started properly, as he lost his first two games and was used only in relief roles in his next two appearances, but since he found his stride he has been coming through with the widely-known vengeance.

Last Friday he blanked the Yankees, 4 to 0, and but for a homer by Earl Webb in yesterday's game with the Red Sox, in which George struck out 10 men, Connie Mack's big righthand ace would have registered another shutout. He pitched 16 runless innings in succession prior to Webb's homer and has allowed only one run in his last 19 innings.

ANOTHER PITCHER WHO has been mowing down the opposition in sensational style is Fred Fitzsimmons, of the Giants. In shutting out the Robins yesterday he hung up his fourth successive win of the season, and he has yet to be charged with a defeat. Fitz has not been scored on in his last 14 innings, has allowed only one run in his last 18 frames, and only two runs in his last 25 rounds. In the four games he has won he yielded only eight runs and 18 hits. In his last two full games he gave up only five hits.

MAX BAER'S second trip from California to this part of the country to display his fistic wares is going to be even less impressive than his first, judging from the reverse he suffered last night in losing the decision to Johnny Risko in their 10-round bout at Cleveland.

It wasn't surprising that the coast heavyweight bowed to such capable glovemen as Tommy Loughran and Ernie Schaaf, and it appeared there would still be plenty of hope for him after he had gained more experience, but his inability to beat the washed-up Risko indicates that he lacks more than was at first surmised.

NOW THEY'RE PICKING Twenty Grand to go the same triumphant route that Gallant Fox traveled last season in cleaning up all the big stakes of the American turf. The victory of Twenty Grand in the Wood Memorial last Saturday at Jamaica has given them the idea.

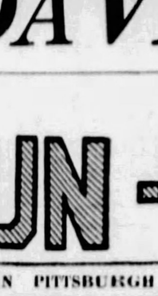
John Hay Whitney

It was by winning the Wood Memorial that Gallant Fox started his drive to the 3-year-old championship in 1930, and many horsemen are of the opinion that Twenty Grand has a good chance to go right on through the Preakness and the Kentucky Derby to the same pinnacle of glory.

THE STAR OF the Greentree Stable, owned by John Hay Whitney and his mother, Mrs. Helen Hay Whitney, has been made an equal choice with Equipoise for the Preakness at Pimlico next Saturday, and in one future book at least he has been established as a 3-to-1 favorite for the Kentucky Derby the following Saturday, Equipoise dropping to second choice at 4 to 1. Most racing followers, however, will await further developments before ranking Twenty Grand as superior to Equipoise. The quality of a horse's victory may be gauged by the caliber of the racer finishing second to him, and Clock Tower, narrowly beaten out by Twenty Grand in the Wood Memorial, is only an ordinary horse that finished 20 lengths behind A La Carte in his previous start. Besides, Twenty Grand proved a slow starter, and though he made it up against Clock Tower and the rest he probably will find it a different proposition to do the same against the kind of horses that will start in the Preakness and the Derby.

SKIBOS TO GET SHOOT PLAQUE FRIDAY

United States Senator James J. Davis will present to members of the Carnegie Institute of Technology rifle team their reward for winning third place in the Eastern Section for senior units of the annual William Randolph Hearst trophy competition, at the review of the corps by President Thomas S. Baker, of Tech, on Friday morning at 11 o'clock. The review is to be held on that part of the Tech campus known as the "Cut," near the intersection of Morewood avenue and Forbes street.



Senator Davis

Carnegie's R. O. T. C. squad will receive a handsome silver plaque, its third prize in the competition. It will be presented by Senator Davis to President Baker, who will accept it in behalf of the institution.

Senator Davis then will present medals to the individual members of the team. The men who will receive the emblems are Bernard B. Scott, Jr., 458 Division street, Bellevue, captain; Frank F. Painter, 313 Eighth avenue Tarentum; Fred W. Beckert, 919 Phineas street, North Side; Helmut W. Buse, 2732 Espey street, Dormont, and Stephen Scherba, 1444 Fourth avenue, Columbus, O.

Carnegie's third-place score was 922 out of a possible 1,000 targets in a nation-wide field of 505 teams. This entry was a record for the tournament as well as for intercollegiate competition in any branch of sport.

TARTANS NEAR LEADERS

Cornell University won the eastern sectional championship with a score of 936, only 14 better than the Carnegie riflemen, while Lafayette College ranked second with 925. The national title went to Ohio State University, of Columbus, with 940, just 18 more targets than the locals registered and only four more than the winner of Carnegie's division.

The University of West Virginia R. O. T. C., with 912 targets, copped first honors in the Southern Section for senior units.

Capt. A. S. Ackerman is in charge of the Carnegie Tech R. O. T. C., and Lieut. F. E. Cothran is the officer in direct charge of rifle marksmanship, ably assisted by Sergt. Ray A. Sommers. Lieut. W. V. Carter also assists in the work.

Upon the arrival from Washington of Senator Davis, he will go immediately to the office of President Baker in Tech's Administration Building, there to await the colorful ceremonies that always mark the president's review of the school's military corps. At 11 o'clock the R. O. T. C. will form for review, and Senator Davis, President Baker, Col. George E. A. Fairley, national commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, and Capt. Ackerman will take their stand on review. After the corps has formed in front of this quartet, the officers will "front and center," and Cadet Col. Frank E. Mueller will present his "troop" to President Baker and his party, who will inspect the corps. Following inspection, the presentation of the Hearst rifle awards will take place.

EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF YESTERDAY: THE MOON IS UPSIDE DOWN IN ARGENTINA—The moon's rotation on her own axis coincides with its revolution around the earth, so that our view of the earth's satellite is limited to a single lunar hemisphere. We all are familiar with the lunar resemblance to a human face (Man in the Moon) when viewed with the naked eye. Now it comes as a distinct shock to learn that our view of the moon is not independent of earthly geographical location. To each inhabitant of our globe, with varying geographical position of the observer, the aspect of the lunar disc varies until, south of the Tropic of Capricorn, the "Man in the Moon" appears suspended upside down. The irregularly spotted surface of the moon to an observer in the Argentine is the exact reverse of the aspect with which we are familiar in the Northern Hemisphere. The same principle holds for the moon's phases. (See: Prof. Max Moeller's article in the imperial and Royal Geographic Society magazine, Vol. 58, page 515, in collaboration with the Argentine National Observatory, Observatorio Nacional Argentino.) DOROTHY SAWYER WAS UNCONSCIOUS FOR SIX MONTHS—A sleep of six months for Miss Dorothy Sawyer, of Webster Grove, Mo., recently was ended after an extended coma that puzzled her doctors. She became unconscious last summer when seh was nearly drowned while bathing in a river and did not regain consciousness until last winter.

TOMORROW: THE MAN OF 100 FACES.

MURRAY KAYOED BY BRANNON

Two knockouts featured the boxing show held for the benefit of the needy of the Fifth Ward last night at the Moose Temple. Eddie Brannon, Hill district Negro, knocked out Harold Murray, of Harrisburg, in the third round of a scheduled eight-round main bout, and Allen Beatty, Negro, of McKeesport, stopped Johnny Brown, of Lawrenceville, in the fourth round of a scheduled six-rounder.

After winning the first two rounds by wide margins, Brannon came out fighting in the third round, and after the frame had gone half way, he landed a right chop to Murray's chin that floored the latter for the full count.

MORE SCHOOLS ENTER

Four Pittsburgh and five out-of-town high schools are the latest to enroll in the twenty-fourth annual University of Pittsburgh interscholastic track and field meet to be held Saturday at the Stadium. Youngstown Rayen, Ellwood City, Braddock, Beaver Falls and New Castle are among the entries.

Woman Amateur Star Enlists in Pro Ranks

ST. LOUIS, May 6.—(AP.)—With no more amateur titles hereabouts for her to win, Miss Virginia Pepp has become St. Louis' first woman golf professional.

RISKO VICTOR OVER BAER

CLEVELAND, May 6.—(INS.)—Johnny Risko, pride of Cleveland, staged a welcome comeback for home town fans last night by winning the decision over Max Baer, California heavyweight, in 10 rounds.

Baer with a grim smile playing on his face throughout was unable to land many of his hard blows. His best efforts were in the clinches where he offered the Clevelander no little punishment.

Baer showed well in the first, but then dropped the offensive to block Risko's hard lefts for three rounds. His attempts to retaliate in the fifth and sixth were met stubbornly by the grunting Risko. Baer appeared unconcerned as to the outcome of the battle and was caught many times off his guard.

SCHAAF VS. MALONEY

BOSTON, May 6.—(AP.)—Jimmy Maloney and Ernie Schaaf, rival Boston heavyweights for the past five years, today were signed for a 10-round bout in the Boston Garden May 26. It will be their first meeting in the ring.

TARTAN TEAMS BUSY TODAY

By JESS CARVER

Its a right busy day for the spring sport teams at Carnegie Tech. The trackmen have to hop down to Washington for a dual engagement with Wash-Jeff and the varsity netters must man the redoubts in an effort to repel the invasion of Duquesne University's racquet swingers.

A. E. Mathes

Offhand, it looks like the Schenley Parkers are due for a brace of victories. Wash-Jeff engaged in its first dual meet of the season last Saturday and was soundly kicked around by Allegheny. The Tartans have shown unexpected strength so far in beating the P. A. A., Western Reserve and the University of Cincinnati. A comparison of the times and measurements made by the Wash-Jeffers against Allegheny and those of Carnegie against Cincy, indicate that the Presidents will be fortunate to be even close.

A week ago, Carnegie's netmen walloped the Dukes 7 to 1 on the Bluffites' own asphalt courts. Captain Andy Smeaton, of the Red and Blue (the Dukes to you) won his match and that let Duquesne out. Maybe they'll do better today, but the Tartans doubt it.

MATHES COACH

A. E. Mathes has been appointed track coach at Kiski, succeeding C. S. March, who handled the preppers squad last year. He was in charge of the squad yesterday as the boys downed the Tech plebes, and will bring his team back to town one week from Saturday for an engagement with the Pitt freshmen.

This afternoon the intramural track and field championships of Duquesne University will be staged on the Bluff campus. All departments of the university will be represented.

Oh, yes, just in closing. The vivacious John (Red) Sullivan, of Homestead, reports that Bill Edwards, captain-elect of the Tech swimming team, has been appointed swimming instructor at the Homestead Municipal Pool for the summer.

Fight Results

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

The classy Cardinals of St. Louis reached Pittsburgh this morning, and are slated to spend the remainder of the week as guests of the Pirates at the Oakland Orchard. The National League champions will make their bow this afternoon when they open a four-game series with the Freebooters.

In exclusive possession of the honor position of their league, the Redbirds are favorites to repeat in the Heydler circuit. But they have their work cut out for them and right now they are on a perilous journey for they must invade all the seaboard cities after finishing with the Buccos Saturday night.

Sergt. Gabby Street, big boss of the Cards, is feeling just about perfect as he scans the future. Gabby's cup of joy was overflowing yesterday when Chick Hafey, slugging outfielder, put his name to a Cardinal contract. It would not be surprising if Chick were to make his season's debut while the Cardinals are in the city.

Hafey, according to accepted reports, is losing a day's pay for every game he misses. He is said to have signed a one-year contract for $12,500, but the Redbird officials were so worked up over his holdout stunt they decided to deduct him for the days he is out.

GRIMES MAY HURL

Skipper Ens and his Pirates band also landed in the city this morning after completing a two-day barnstorming jaunt into West Virginia. All of the first-string sharpshooters, however, have been in town since Monday morning, they coming direct from Cincinnati, where the Buccos engaged in a doubleheader with the Reds Sunday.

The Pirate manager stated he would assign Heinie Meine to Fogarty Knoll to heckle the representatives of Heinie's home town. It was only 10 days ago that Meine scored a shutout victory over the Redbirds in St. Louis. On that occasion he pitched like one of the best hurlers in the game.

The Freebooters rather expect to tangle with Burleigh Grimes in the opener, although Sergt. Street has any number of pitchers ready for duty. In this connection it might be stated the Cardinals' slab staff is generally rated as the best in the game.

Chances for the return of Gus Suhr to his firstbase post were not bright last night. Gus spent a large part of yesterday at the clubhouse, where Dr. Charles Jorgensen gave him attention in the hope of getting him ready for today. The bruise injury ont Gus' right knee is of such a nature as to cause him much annovance at intervals when he is walking or running.

TO HONOR REGAN

"Bill Regan Day" will be observed at Forbes Field Saturday, Gus Miller and his co-workers who have charge of the plans stated yesterday the affair will be one of many bright features. Regan played his first ball on the Oakland sandlots and later he was an usher at the home of the Pirates. So the Oakland boys are out to give Bill the honor he deserves, and already Bill is assured of so many gifts it is difficult to list them. Many of the presents already are on display in Gus' Oak-

Says Nick Altrock

(Baseball's Comedian)

NEW YORK, May 6.—Don't say I didn't warn you if we win the pennant this year. Our Washington club is the dark horse of the league, and we are not troubled with spavin. I said to Griff today, "We are going good. With me in the coaching box we can't lose." Griff said, "With you in a wooden kimono we still couldn't lose." I said, "Griff, how about a raise?" Griff said, "I can't give you a raise, but I will promote you from sleeping in the baggage car to an upper berth." Well, anyway, we have got Connie Mack worried. He has got more wrinkles than a pair of corduroy pants.

BY TOM BIRKS

Reliance Life at Duquesne Traders and North Side Buicks at Dormont, the first fray in the West Penn League and the second game in the City loop, feature the card scheduled for the local sandlots this evening.

One other game in the light first class division finds the East end Cardinals helping the D. J. Brodericks pry off the lid at Marshall Field in a Steel City League game.

A record turnout of fans will wend its way to Duquesne to watch Tom Martin's club start its home season. John R. Davies, of Duquesne, will throw out the first ball for the Steelers.

At Dormont the fans will have an opportunity to see the South Hills entrants in the City League race for the first time. The club is highly touted. Part of the team played at Five Points on Sunday and lost a good game to Akron.

COOPER MAY HURL

Should Wilbur Cooper be in shape, there is little doubt as to who will get the slab assignment. Carroll and George McFarland are on edge and may be used.

Manager George Miller, of Reliance Life, wants to get away to a good start. Vice President Scott is in Oklahoma City, and has wired the team the best of luck for the coming season.

Manager Grabowsky, of the Brodericks, naturally wants to win his opener in the Steel City League from the Cardinals. The East Enders are about due to win a pennant, after making many stabs and failing.

Four games will be played in the Ten-Mile Valley circuit at Washington, and reports have it that the games are being played to banner crowds.

HOMEWOOD BEATEN

Two of the favorites in the City League ran into difficulties in their openers last evening, both suffering defeats. Homewood was permitted only five hits by Luntz, of the North Side Buicks, the Bollmen losing a 4-to-2 dicision. Walter Kimmick and Briley each walloped home runs. The J. L. Thomas Club, playing its second game, upset the dope by taking the North Side Civics into camp, 9 to 8. A six-run rally in the fifth inning turned the trick.

In the Greater Pittsburgh circuit Whitaker tied the Wilkinsburg Murs, 4-4; Verona walloped North Bessemer, 11 to 4, and Immaculate Heart trimmed Fintex, 8 to 5. In the West Penn loop, Linwood downed the Duquesne Traders, 13 to 2, and the Homestead Aces nosed out Turtle Creek, 7-6.

The Union Printers walloped the Telegraph Club, 14-6, in a North-South League game, while St. George defeated the Becks, 9-6, and the Lineys tied Jena, 3-3. The Penn Club downed the Jack Potts entry, 8-4, in a Suburban League contest. Fineview defeated St. Anthonys, 5-3, in a North Side Twilight League fracas and in the Steel City League, Pasquale won over Mifflin, 7 to 6.

In independent games, St. Clair Frogs downed the Pathfinders, 7-2. Grandview won over the North Side Elks, 6-5; St. Joachim's upset the Reicks, 4-2; Swissvale nosed out the Booths, 4-2. Crawford Juniors defeated Protectory, 9-3, and the Homestead Grays, in a night game at Charleroi, defeated the Middle Atlantic League entry, 10 to 3.

The Jeannette Jays, of the Middle Atlantic League, were defeated by the touring Detroit Clowns at Jeannette, 6 to 5. Haller and Sawyer, of the Clowns, each connected for three safe hits. Wheeling, of the same league, defeated the House of David, 5 to 4 at Wheeling.

FATHER-AND-SON PITCHING ACT

GAIL SLOAN, SR., AND GAIL, JR., FORMER AND PRESENT MOUND STARS

When Gail Sloan, Jr., pitched a no-hit game for Wilkinsburg High School against Edgewood High, fanning 11 batters in seven innings, he merely was following in the footsteps of his dad, who pitched for the leading sandlot teams of the Pittsburgh district for years until recently. However, whereas the elder Sloan was a famous slow-ball pitcher, the youngster relies on a speedy delivery. Their form is similar, though, as the picture shows.

Duquesne Honors Floor Champions

The city of Duquesne paid tribute to its six championship basketball teams at a banquet held last night in the auditorium of the Duquesne Methodist Church. The Duquesne Lafayettes, winners of the Allegheny County League championship for the fifth straight year, received a team trophy and individual trophies. John R. Davies, sponsor of the team, was presented a mantel clock by the members of the club. David C. Burroughs, assistant superintendent of the Duquesne Steel Works, was toastmaster.

PIRATES BEATEN

Yesterday the Pirates wound up their short exhibition series by taking one on the whiskers at Charleston, W. Va. The Middle Atlantic League team of that place walloped the Buccos, 8 to 2.

The Pirates tallied in the first inning and again in the third, but rallies by the Charleston hitters in the fifth, sixth and eighth innings put the game safely away. The Pirates outhit the Senators, 12 to 11, but that was as far as it went. Wood and Bednar toiled on the slab for the Bucs. The score:

LOCAL ARENAS BID FOR BIG OPENERS

By HARRY KECK
Sports Editor.

Local boxing interest has turned from the indoor to the outdoor season, with only one more show slated at Motor Square Garden and the possibility of a final indoor program at McKeesport next week, to be followed the succeeding week by the opening of both the Meyers Bowl and Hickey Park outdoor arenas.

The Bowl, located in North Braddock, will be opened on Monday, May 18, and Hickey Park, in Millvale, the following Thursday. The windup attractions have not yet been set, but the promoters promise the best they can line up and plenty of keen competition for each other.

BOTH SEEK HERRERA

Originally each arena sought to sign Tony Herrera, the Mexican Flash, who meets Jack (Kid) Berg, former junior-welterweight champion, in Madison Square Garden, New York, Friday night, for its opening windup. Ray Alvis, manager of Tony, finally cast his lot with Hickey Park, but the club has been experiencing considerable difficulty lining up a suitable opponent. Manager Alvis has put thumbs down on the first opponent offered him, Johnny Jadich, of Philadelphia. Unless a match can be closed soon, it is possible that Herrera, after having been wanted by both clubs, will not be on either card. At any rate, Manager John L. Hernon and Matchmaker Bill Dummer are casting about for another match for Hickey Park in case the Herrera bout fizzles out.

Meanwhile Promoter Apples Meyers and Matchmaker Jules Beck, of the Meyers Bowl, are saying little but working a lot on their opening attraction. Mystery has surrounded their movements ever since they learned they could not get Herrera, but they say they will come up with a wow of an opener.

GARDEN TO CLOSE

Beck is trying to line up an all-star local talent show with which to close the indoor season at Motor Square Garden next Monday night. It will be the twenty-eighth boxing show of the campaign there, a record for the East End arena. Promoter Jim McGirr, of McKeesport, is trying to land a Jimmy Belmont-Tiger Joe Randall show as a farewell offering for Thursday night of next week.

Between Rounds

Ed Fritz, New Castle promoter, has offered Manager Bunny Buntach a match for Buck McTiernan with Pete August, of Bridgeport, Conn., May 18.

Sylvan Bass, Baltimore welterweight, who suffered a badly cut forehead in his only bout here, with Jimmy Belmont, a few months ago, swings into action against Jimmy Rhodes in the main bout at Atlantic City next Monday night. Phil Raymond meets Ernie Caesar in the eight-round semi-final.

Frankie Bojorski, of McKean, Pa., established himself even further in the hearts of the Erie fans by the decisive manner in which he took the measure of Ray Collins in a windup there several nights ago.

Benny Hilldorfer, of the North Side, is the newest boxing promoter in Western Pennsylvania. He has obtained a license to conduct professional shows in the Gallatin Gardens, Uniontown, and will put on his first card Friday night, with Joey Spiegel, of Uniontown, boxing Howard Mitchell, of Cincinnati, in the 10-round main bout. Eddie Hebner and Frankie Moran are in the semi-final. Allen Beatty will box an opponent to be named in the second bout and Ben Smitley will take on Tony Frante in the opener. Hilldorfer plans one other show before the bad weather comes on and then will resume activities in the fall.

Herman Perlick boxes Maxie Strub in the 10-round main bout at Erie Friday night. Harry Alexandrian takes on Jimmy Dean in the semi-final and Ollie Koski engages Benny Burns and I. T. Battles is in with Vic Pierson in two other six-rounders.

BOBBY JONES' Lessons in Golf

American Open, British Open, American Amateur and British Amateur Champion

Ask any number of golfers which is the most difficult club to play, and I will wager that the No. 1 iron will get the vote by a large majority. Possibly, if there is a close second it will be the mashie niblic. We have all run across players now and then who avoid the wood clubs as they would poisonous snakes, but I think there is no question that the average of the average golfer is far better with the wood than with the iron, particularly with the long irons.

Bobby Jones

Strangely enough, the mashie-niblic is troublesome because it has so much loft, and the No. 1 is difficult to handle because it has so little. With the one, it is hard to keep the flight of the ball low enough to be controlled, and with the other it is hard to get the ball up far enough to have any definite flight, and this difficulty with the No. 1 is accentuated in the case of the average golfer who can hit neither so hard nor so accurately as the expert. In the extreme case, even the No. 2 presents too great a problem. But, at any rate, there are two weak spots in the range between the driver and the putter which ought to be covered and made stronger, if possible; one in the longer irons and one in the pitching clubs. This is how I have tried to do it.

PITCHING TROUBLESOME

The pitching first: my trouble here has always been that I tried to get a mashie-niblick that would cover the range of all pitches, one that had enough loft on the face to be effective from even very short distances. Using such a club when the shot was required to be hit hard, I found the ball going too high to be controlled. It would always deviate from the line. Two years ago, I obtained a mashie-niblic with a somewhat straighter face, pitched only a little more than a spade, a club with which I could keep the longer shots down a bit and control the flight as well as I could with a mashie. Of course, it was of no use for the very short pitches, but I always had my niblic to fall back on. The great loft of the niblic presented no problem when I did not have to hit hard.

Now, the average golfer has relatively little trouble with medium irons, that is, with the No. 3, 4 and 5. Each of these has sufficient loft so that the player does not have to worry about getting the ball up, and not enough to cause him to bother about keeping it down. These are the easiest to play of all irons. For the same reasons the spoon is the easiest of all the woods, and a far more tractable club than the No. 1.

BOBBY FAVORS SPOON

After long years of struggling with this pesky club, the No. 1, or driving iron, as we used to call it, I have finally reached a point where I use it only when I am virtually forced to do so. Except rarely, I only use it now when I want a long boring shot into the wind or when, for some reason, I want to drop the ball short of the green and let it roll on. I carry two spoons in my bag—one that is almost a brassie and another more lofted—which just about cover the range of the No. 1 iron, and these I use instead of the iron wherever I can. I have long since lost all pride in being able to reach a certain green with an iron. As a matter of fact, I can actually get more length with my big iron than I can get with by No. 2 spoon. But after all the object is to get close to the hole, and no points are scored for using any particular club.

Anyone who has tried knows how much, or how little, chance there is to play a decent shot with a straight-faced iron from a cuppy lie in the fairway. From such a place, or from heavy grass, the spoon is far easier to use. The average golfer simply lacks the power to play a driving iron accurately, except when the ball is lying nicely or upon a tee. And this is true for the strongest of men if he doesn't happen to be an expert player. The spoon, with its greater loft and more resilient face, does not require the same punching.

EVENING SUN-TELEGRAPH MARKETS

Stocks Dip, Rally — Narrow Trading Here

U. S. STEEL DIPS TO LOWEST IN 7 YEARS

Corporation Shares Drop 3 Points, Bethlehem 2; List Sags, Then Heads Up

NEW YORK, May 3.—(AP.)—The stock market groped about helplessly seeking a trend today.

The midweek business statistics were devoid of positive indications, and the diversity of opinions expressed at the sessions of the International Chamber of Commerce in Washington have not helped to clear the hazy atmosphere in Wall street. The market was extremely dull.

The list sagged for a time in the morning, then worked back toward its starting point. United States Steel was depressed more than 3 points to a new low since 1924, and showed little recuperative power. Bethlehem lost 2. Losses of 2 points or more were fully recovered in a number of issues.

The weekly steel trade review were probably as favorable as could be expected at this time of year, when the trend is normally downward. Iron Age placed average ingot output production at 47 per cent of capacity, against 48 a week previously. Its composite price of finished steel, however, declined for the first time in six weeks, touching a new low since 1922.

The copper market is virtually at a standstill. Custom smelters are now quoting 9 cents a pound, another drop of ¼ cent and there are rumors of sales under 9 cents. These prices are the lowest since the 1890's. There is considerable unconfirmed gossip in the trade of meetings of important producers to discuss shutting down of more high cost mines.

Freight car loadings as reported for the week ended April 25 are only 730 cars under the previous week, a negligible change, were it not for the fact that that week usually shows a substantial gain. It also marks a cessation of the upward trend of the preceding fortnight.

Money was easier, with call loans again available at 1 per cent outside. Bankers' acceptance rates were cut ⅛ of one per cent, the third downward revision in a fortnight, again leading to talk of a lowered rediscount rate.

FT. WORTH GAS PLAN UNSOUND

FORT WORTH, Tex., May 6.—The Chatham & Phoenix Corporation, who have been investigating the possibilities of bringing gas from the Panhandle area of Texas to Fort Worth to be delivered to a municipally-owned and operated distribution system, have advised City Council of Fort Worth that their engineers, Ford, Bacon & Davis, of New York, have pronounced the plan neither practicable nor feasible, nor financially sound upon the basis proposed by the city.

The Shamrock Oil and Gas Company planned to construct the proposed line to replace the service supplied by the Lone Star Gas Corporation in Fort Worth.

March Footwear Production Gains

WASHINGTON, May 6.—Production of boots and shoes by 1,185 factories during March amounted to 29,154,774 pairs, against 23,970,956 pairs produced by 1,210 factories in February, and 28,625,644 pairs in March, 1930. Three months' output totaled 73,014,599 pairs against 81,057,759 pairs in the like 1930 period.

Wall Street Looks for Motors to Declare Regular Dividend

Wall street anticipates the declaration of the regular quarterly dividend of 75 cents a share due at this time when directors of General Motors Corporation meet late today to take action on the payment. The preliminary report for the March quarter recently published showed net income equivalent to 61 cents a share for the period, or somewhat short of dividend requirements as compared with the equivalent of 98 cents a share earned in the same period last year. It is expected, however, that results this quarter will be sufficient to bring net for the six month to a figure slightly in excess of the total dividend requirements of $1.50 for the period. General Motors has ample cash resources with cash and securities having a value of $179,133,114 on March 31, last, against $125,814,939 on the same date last year.

The copper industry has not experienced any turn for the better in its situation thus far this year, judging by the remarks of Stephen Birch, head of Kennecott Copper, before the annual meeting of that company. He said earnings this year have run below last year, though the company has sold and delivered more copper than it did in the same period of 1930. The company is producing copper at a cost of less than 7½ cents a pound before depreciation, he pointed out, adding that wages in the copper industry have come down automatically with the decline in the price of the metal and are now 16 to 22 per cent under the peak.

The nature of the remarks of Melvin A. Taylor, Chicago banker, relative to stock market operations before the International Chamber of Commerce did not find a kindly reception in the New York financial community. His theory on fixing a minimum for marginal accounts drew the retort in several directions that such a development would mean the end of the odd lot trader or speculator and in turn the elimination of a goodly portion of the normal business of the commission house broker. Relative to floor trading, characterized by the banker as "plain crap-shooting," little was said beyond pointing to this as one of the evils which must be allowed if a free and open market is to prevail.

Reports current in the New York financial district included among other things an inkling of a prospective big merger in the automobile field. Gossip of this nature has been mighty scarce over the last few months and in consequence this yarn aroused no little interest. According to the report in circulation, the discussions of the project have not yet reached a point where anything in the way of definite details might be expected to materialize in the immediate future. But the deal, if reports are well founded, would involve some four independent manufacturers and at least one large accessory producer, now engaged chiefly in the manufacture of ignition and starting equipment. Motor shares were not especially influenced by the story.

Bear traders who have been leading sellers of American Can in the past week or two were putting out stocks on the theory that the small earnings reported by California Packing for 1930 reflected the fact that some of the packing companies had a large carry-over of stock, which would make it necessary for them to buy large quantities of cans this year. This opinion may be far fetched, as some interests insist, but it has been having some effect on American Can.

Students are giving more attention to the railroad shares because of the growing belief that, as those stocks were the leaders on the reactions, they are likely to be the first to show a definite turn. It is pointed out, however, that purchases in this group, when the propitious time arrives, should be made only in issues which are attractively priced and which seem certain to maintain fair dividends giving a satisfactory yield. Some of the stocks mentioned in the various discussions have been Chesapeake and Ohio, Southern Pacific, Union Pacific, Norfolk and Western, and New Haven. Attention also is likely to be attracted to the nondividend-paying rails that have prospects of staging a good comeback in the future.

RAIL COMBINE OPPOSED

BOSTON, May 6.—(AP.)—Formation of an all-New England railroad system or consolidation of the Boston and Maine and New Haven railroads would be "clearly inimical to the best interests of New England," William H. Boyd said today. Boyd, counsel for O. P. and M. J. Van Sweringen and the Chesapeake and Ohio-Nickel plate Railroad System, spoke before the legislative committee on transportation.

He reiterated previously expressed opinions of the Van Sweringen interests on the solution of the New England railroad problem and outlined their plan whereby trunk lines of the East would be permitted to enter New England territory. Under this plan, the Boston and Maine, Maine Central and the Bangor and Aroostook roads would be allocated to the Chesapeake and Ohio-Nickel Plate System, the Boston and Albany and the Rutland (except the Rouses Point-Ogdensburg Line) to the New York Central; the New York, New Haven and Hartford, under joint ownership to the Pennsylvania and the Baltimore and Ohio. The Canadian National and the Canadian Pacific railroads, which now operate in Northern New England, would continue in their present status.

BAKER BOUGHT IN DISTRESS PERIODS

His Investment Philosophy Also Called for Holding Stocks for Future Profit

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER
Universal Service.

NEW YORK, May 6.—George F. Baker's investment philosophy not only called for acquiring good stocks and holding them through the years to share in America's long-term economic growth, but also entailed a willingness to buy into weaker companies in time of widespread distress and hold on to them until they became strong.

Mr. Rukeyser

Unlike the outsider who trusts to luck and to fate, Mr. Baker inevitably became an insider, and played a part in building up management.

"aciturn until the end, Mr. Baker had a tendency to minimize the complexity of his work. When Jackson E. Reynolds, now president of the First National Bank, became vice president some years ago, he entered the institution from the law without previous banking training. During his first day at the bank, Mr. Reynolds is reported to have modestly asked Mr. Baker what he was supposed to do. Mr. Baker replied, "Just don't do anything unreasonable." And, with that cryptic advice to go on, Mr. Reynolds became president of the institution in six years.

Paying 100 per cent in dividends, Mr. Baker's bank was the model for many other ambitious bankers. According to Wall Street folklore, it was once rumored that another institution wanted to merge with the First National. Mr. Baker sent for the president of the other institution, and naively asked why he wanted to merge with the First National.

The answer was:

Though the dean of American bankers and perhaps the most significant personality in Wall Street, Mr. Baker's character and career were never adequately sketched in the public prints.

REFUSED MEMOIRS

Editors of the great national magazines were free to give writers standing orders to bring in the personal memoirs of Mr. Baker, but such assignments were never fulfilled. Mr. Baker stood in the way.

Mr. Baker's first published philanthropy was a gift of $50,000 to Cornell University. A friend pointed out to Mr. Baker that it must have been gratifying to him to find out how well the press received his kindly act. Mr. Baker is said to have shaken his head, and remarked:

"It comes too late."

At length Mr. Baker cleared up what was in his mind. After the panic of 1907, in which Mr. Baker and the late James Stillman shared with the late J. Pierpont Morgan the main responsibility for financial leadership, Mr. Baker was roundly cheered as he attended an important meeting at the Union League Club.

He said:

"I could not get home quick enough that night to tell her about it."

In the interim, his wife had passed away.

THE SECRET SIX -:- By Frances Marion

Gang Refuses Surrender, Gun Battle Waged

As Carl walked easily away from the telephone in the steak house, he saw the last of the gang drifting up the stairs.

He had just decided to drift over to the police station and await developments when Scorpio's guard, Eddie, hurried down the stairs, to stop him.

"Hello, Carl," with a friendly smile, Scorpio heard you were here . . . wants you to come upstairs for a minute."

"What for?" asked Carl, not without a slight suspicion.

"He's on the up and up tonight," said Eddie. "Feels pretty good about the trial. Guess he wants you to get him a lay-out in the Sunday paper."

Eddie couldn't see Carl's smile. "I'll give him a lay-out—gladly."

Prisoner of Gang

But the premonition of danger was reawakened in Carl's mind as he walked up the long flight of narrow stairs and down the dark hall toward Scorpio's office. As they had swung open the door leading into the hallway, he thought he had heard a woman scream.

It was opened by Scorpio himself. He was grinning pleasantly.

"Well, if it ain't my old pal Carl! Come right in, kid. I'm awful glad to see you."

Carl hesitated a moment. As the door closed behind him one of the mob struck him over the head with a blackjack. And Scorpio laughed as Carl crashed to the floor.

In the back of the room crouched the girl. Her dishevelled hair fell over her face half hiding her starkly staring eyes. Mizotski was tying a handkerchief over her mouth.

Carl rocked on his feet, reaching for the table to steady himself. It was several minutes before the reeling faces that surrounded him came into sharp focus.

He knew. And he knew that they knew.

"Well, the game's up. I suppose I'm going for a ride," he said quietly.

"You sure are," grinned Scorpio, "but you're going to do some talking first."

Newton, who had remained in the background, now came forward.

"Who are the Secret Six?" he demanded.

A stinging blow from Scorpio. "You'd better know. Plenty where that came from!"

Again Carl's legs coupled under him and he staggered back against the wall. It was then that he saw the girl.

"What are you going to do with her?"

"We just didn't want you to be lonesome on that ride," and Scorpio laughed again.

This laughter was more terrible to Carl than Newton's sharp bombardment at him.

"Who are the Secret Six?" Better come through, Carl. Who are they?

Anne saw that Carl was looking at her and she shook her head, her eyes saying, "Don't tell!"

Stalls for Time

"It's the truth, Newton, I haven't the slightest idea who they are."

"You'll change your mind."

Eddie stepped forward.

"Shall we get under way?"

"Sure," said Scorpio, "He'll talk by the time we get to the river." Laughing again, "The water's awful cold this time of the year."

For a few moments the silence was broken only by the ticking of the clock. Carl's eyes traveled slowly upward.

Perhaps—if he could stall them along!

"You might at least let me say goodbye to my old Aunt Emma," drawled Carl, with a sad attempt at levity.

"Smart, ain't you!" from Scorpio.

"What's that?" cried Eddie.

"Sounds like a fire," said Mizotski.

Carl talked brokenly. "You want to know who's in the Secret Six—well, I'll tell you—if you'll let us go, I'll tell you—take these bracelets off—"

"Let him go, Eddie."

"Yes, Newton, I'll tell you—so you can get every one of them."

Newton shot his question again at Carl.

"Who are the Secret Six?"

Carl feigned weakness.

"The Secret Service! What are their names?"

"The leader's name is Smith—Horace L. Smith—" as Scorpio bent closer, "—one of the Smith brothers."

Rendezvous Surrounded

"Hell, that's no fire!" shouted Scorpio, rushing to the window. "Motor cops!"

Like rats from a sinking ship they rushed from the room into Newton's office on the corner. There they stared, terrified, their eyes roving the block below.

At both ends of the street traffic had been halted by cordons of uniformed men.

In the park, across the street, was a solid line; city police, Centro police, deputies from the sheriff's office and federal men. Machine guns, rifles and revolvers gleamed in the light of the street lamps.

With military precision the messengers of the Secret Six continued to mobilize. A long line of cars came over the drawbridge and lined the streets.

Centro was now a gigantic rat-trap.

When the last screams of the sirens had died away, Carl rose quietly to his feet. The men in the other room had forgotten him. Swiftly he locked the door.

Then, taking the gag from Anne's mouth, he led her quickly through the deserted rooms, down the stairway and into the steak house.

Newton paced the office feverishly. He returned to the window as Donlin and two officers started across the street toward the steak house.

"Newton! Newton! What'll we do?" as one voice.

Newton saw at once there was no escape. Cautiously he raised the window.

"What do you want, Donlin?" Newton shouted.

"We've federal and county warrants for all of you. That means you, too, Newton. Better give in quietly. If you don't we're coming in to get you."

Newton hesitated a moment. Then, "We'll be right down, Donlin."

Six gunmen crouched in the open window. The choppers were already turned on the men below when Newton issued orders.

"Don't let Donlin cross the street!"

Gun Battle Started

As Donlin and the officers started once more across the street there was roar of guns. The three men fell, riddled with bullets.

Then pandemonium reigned.

Gangsters fell under the hail of steel.

Scorpio, groping through the smoke-filled rooms, was searching for Newton.

At last he came upon him in one of the offices. Newton was kneeling before the safe. As the great steel door swung open, Newton plunged his hands into its many pockets, searching for the many thousands of dollars in stolen bonds and currency.

"So you tried to double-cross us? Planning to escape while we're eatin' fire?"

"Quick, I can save you! I've got a motorboat at Pier 14."

Down the back stairs ran Newton, followed by Scorpio.

The roar of guns; crash of glass; the resounding thud of axes upon unyielding doors.

Out came a drum of gasoline.

"Get into that tunnel!" he instructed, indicating a low opening. Newton crawled in.

Scorpio followed.

Then he drew a match from his pocket, and lighted it. He threw it.

A great, roaring wall of flame burst up from the cellar.

Hero

Fleeing Gunfire, Coward Captures Prisoners

Hemmingway Jones was two kinds of a coward—and he knew it.

In the first place, he was sick with fright over the thought of going to war.

In the second place, he was still more frightened over the thought that someone might suspect his cowardice.

There were more than Hemmingway Jones, during the draft period, who were situated almost exactly the same way.

But with Hem, as his friends called him, the fear of being known as a coward was greater than his fear of injury or death.

"Hem," said Dwight Adams, "is scared pink of the draft, and there's no two ways about it."

"Why, Dwight, that's unkind," Mazie Hatton answered, "I'd wait until he tried to dodge it or something. I'd be sure. Did he tell you that he was frightened?"

"You might drop me off at home, Dwight," Mazie said, refusing to discuss the subject further. They had been on the country club veranda having sandwiches and tea after a two-some. Mazie and Dwight had one thing in common, at least—they loved golf.

In Excellent Health

While Dwight was taking Mazie home and trying to square things with her after his attack on Hemmingway Jones, this same Hemmingway Jones was in the office of a Dr. Barnes over in the next city. He did not want to go to any local doctor. A local doctor might talk.

The doctor had given him a thorough examination.

"If I were an insurance company, young man," the doctor told Jones, "I'd give you a million dollar policy."

"Then—then there's nothing the matter with me?"

"Not a thing!"

"That means I'd have no trouble being accepted if drafted?"

"Not a bit. The examiners would give you one look and tell you to grab a gun and start drilling. I admire your spirit, young man, and there's no charge for the examination. Any young fellow as eager to get in and fight as you are is my idea of a regular guy. Wish I were your age. I'd be in this war in no time at all."

"Thanks—it's—it's great, isn't it!"

Hemmingway went out with the smile, but it died as soon as he got away.

As he drove slowly back to his home city his mind was in a turmoil of agonized thoughts.

He always drove slowly, he was afraid of accidents and getting hurt.

At this time the problem that confronted Hemmingway Jones was how to avoid the draft and do it in a manner that wouldn't stamp him as a coward.

He couldn't run away—flee the country. He couldn't have his teeth out or do anything that would bar him—for that would be known, and he felt that the moment he got his notice of being drafted he would turn the color of ashes and pass out.

He dropped into his favorite billiard parlor that evening. Hem Jones was good at billiards. There wasn't the least danger in that game unless an opponent got mad and hit you with the cue—a most unlikely thing.

Mr. Edward Gilson was there and invited Hem to play. Mr. Gilson was the manager of the office where Hem worked.

They often played. And while they played this game Gilson said, "You sure have one able friend, Mazie Hatton. The way she laid Dwight Adams out for hinting that you are a coward was a caution."

Jones Volunteers

Gilson had overheard all of that conversation on the club house veranda. He repeated it to Hem Jones.

"Adams is all right—he just didn't understand," Jones stammered.

"Understand what, Jonesie?"

"That I meant I intended to volunteer. Why wait to be drafted?"

"Right—and your job will be here when you get back. Wish I were young, I'd grab a gun in a split second."

A great many hundred thousand men, safe in the age limit, said the same thing at the time a certain man reconsidered his words and decided that we were not too proud to fight.

And so Hemmingway Jones volunteered.

He volunteered because he was a coward—too cowardly to permit anyone to suspect that he was afraid.

He kept telling himself that a thousand and one things could happen to prevent his actually getting into battle. He was right, a thousand and one things could happen, but not one of them did happen!

Mazie said to Dwight Adams: "I see Hem hated to be drafted."

"They won't draft me, either. I'm going to volunteer today," Dwight said, "and when I come back I'm going to marry you."

"I can't promise, Dwight."

"Meaning that you promised Hem?"

"That's not fair, but I'll tell you that I didn't promise him, either. I said I'd see."

More Frightened

"You'll see, all right. I'm telling you that Hem is yellow—he's a coward and it will show in action. I'll be back with a commission."

"If they knew in the War Department that you had volunteered they wouldn't bother to draft any more men. Gee, but you're a modest lad," Mazie told him.

However, Mazie accepted Dwight's kiss, just as she accepted Hem's kiss when they departed for camp.

She didn't see them when they went over. It was during the time when the sailing of a transport wasn't shouted from housetops or cabled to Germany.

It seemed to him that something must turn up to prevent his actually going under fire. Perhaps the war would end. Perhaps he would get sick and be sent back to some hospital.

But there was no perhaps about it. When the time came Private Hemmingway Jones went up front to relieve some of the boys who had been fighting for days.

As he trudged at night along crowded roadways there was enough light for him to see a long stretch of small crosses. He marched miles after this, but couldn't get the vision of the crosses out of his mind.

They were in the front line trenches three days. At times the artillery fire almost drove them frantic.

And then word came that at two in the morning they were going over the top. There would be the usual barrage, then the rush, the bloody sickening hand-to-hand fight with the enemy.

Seeks Safety

Jones felt sure his top sergeant could hear his knees knock together. Secretly he rubbed some mud on his face to hide its chalky whiteness.

The barrage came, the word came, they went up and over, men dropped about him, more men, a great "ash can" exploded near him. He heard the swish of another.

This was too much. He couldn't stand it. There, just ahead, was an immense shell hole. Hemmingway Jones dived head first into that hole.

There was a gutteral "Ugh."

Jones' head had struck something. For a moment he thought his neck was broken. Then something was swinging at him and he lifted his rifle to ward off the black thing.

A sickening groan followed.

A star shell flared and made brief daylight.

Jones almost fainted. The black thing had been an enemy soldier and he leaped on the bayonet of Jones' rifle. This had finished him.

The next flare enabled the man to see. His arms went up. After a while Jones got his revolver. Dawn came and Jones sat there and shivered.

Three faces peered into the shell hole and Jones cringed until he saw that they were his own people.

"Look here," said a voice. "I'm so-and-so if Jonesie didn't quiet that machine gun nest and capture the outfit. Had quite a struggle, too—had to bayonet one of the so-and-sos," and he added more.

The shavetail slid down into the hole. He would be a captain in a few hours, for their captain had gone west.

"I'll see that you get proper credit for this, Jones," the shavetail promised.

If Jones had received proper credit he would have been disgraced.

Instead, they made a hero of him back home when he returned, and today, settled down in a comfortable home with Mazie and a family, nothing can convince Hemmingway Jones that he is not a hero.

Present Depression Is Part of World War Cost

Present realities are demonstrating that the earlier short term inflationary gains were in part illusory.

The dire facts constitute a confirmation of the thesis set forth by Norman Angell, in his book, "The Great Illusion," that destructive warfare is harmful to victors as well as to vanquished.

Before the setback, foreign propagandists, seeking a remission of debts due the United States treasury, fallaciously argued that America had benefited economically more from war than it would have gained from peace.

Carl Snyder, statistician of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, thinks that the measure of the cost of the war was in the failure of world production to make the customary normal growth. Mr. Snyder estimates that up to date the war has cost the world nearly 400 billions of dollars.

"The price of the war," the statistician pointed out, "was a blasting paralysis of growth from which apparently we have only recently recovered, and which will apparently never be made up. This was, so far as we may judge, a lasting loss!"

The authentic character of the loss was hidden from popular understanding during the earlier prosperity, which was to a large extent devoted to restoration of what had been destroyed, rather than to the creation of entirely new wealth.

Out of the suffering incidental to the present world wide depression, people are at length recognizing that the world spent a large part of its patrimony in the great war.

Part of this accumulated treasure was literally blown up with the aid of machine guns. Part of it disappeared in the overdraught on accumulated supplies made by warring nations, which took workers out of productive channels and turned them to destruction.

Other subtler war activities also made for impoverishment. Mr. Snyder has hinted as to these losses resulting from the diversion of workers from the production of wealth creating to wealth destroying activities.

When the final economic audit has been made, something should also be charged to the ruthless elimination of wealth creating human units and to the physical impairment of many others.

Care for the injured and pensions, though constituting a legitimate claim on humane society, nevertheless add to the economic strain.

Twelve and a half years after the Armistice, the world is learning emphatically that it has paid a heavy price for five years of warfare.

The world is just beginning to find out that it is not as well off as it thought it was.

The balance at the bank is not as great as it was and some checks are coming back marked, "No funds!"

In the light of these cool, post-war accountings, it becomes clear that the price the people can reasonably afford to pay for peace building statesmanship is truly prodigious.

Pass Musmanno Bill!

Administration Police Bill Dead—Measure for Property Guards Should Be Adopted.

The Pinchot bill, creating a new industrial police system as a substitute for the present one, sponsored by Representative Wilson, of McKean County, was defeated in the House at Harrisburg yesterday by the significant vote of 142 opposed to 43 in favor of the measure.

Our Allegheny County delegation deserves praise for its stand—unanimously against the Pinchot bill.

The members thus virtually kicked the Wilson bill out of the House, which many hereabouts, all too familiar with the evils of a "coal and iron police" system, will think is exactly what should have been done with it.

This leaves the Senate, where the Musmanno bill, providing for property guards, now rests, without the prospect of passing two bills and leaving them both up to the Governor. This was the situation two years ago, when Gov. Fisher, having before him the Musmanno and Mansfield bills, signed the latter, continuing the practice of "farming" out the sovereign police power of the state, as the defeated Pinchot-Wilson bill also did.

The Senate should now speedily pass the Musmanno bill, and Gov. Pinchot should sign it. The people of the state are tired of "coal and iron police," no matter under what official title they masquerade.

The unanimity with which the House, friendly to Gov. Pinchot, refused to line up with him in this matter, is a pretty good reflection of just how tired the people really are of seeing the state sell its police authority to big corporations.

Ought to Reconsider

Opponents of Blue Law Modifier Have Chance to Be Fair and Generous.

There was much disappointment in Allegheny County yesterday when it was learned that the Sunday baseball amendment to the Schwartz bill was defeated through lack of constitutional majority, although it carried the House of Representatives by a vote of 102 to 101. The number needed to pass the bill finally is 105. Supporters of the amendment unable to be present, it is said, could have put the measure over had they been on hand to cast their votes.

An attempt to have the bill reconsidered is being made. Such a move must come from two members who opposed the bill. Since the opponents do not constitute a majority of the House there is hope that they will not insist upon holding their tactical advantage, but will be generous enough to permit the question to be decided by a majority of the representatives of the people.

They could consistently do this, with clear consciences, since they have stood by their guns in behalf of the blue law in such a manner as to indicate to their constituents there has been no surrender on the question of principle as they see it. To concede under such circumstances would be merely an acknowledgment that majority opinion should prevail ethically as well as constitutionally.

The Sun-Telegraph is sorry to note that six members of the Allegheny delegation could not see their way clear to support the sentiment of the county in this matter. That is overwhelmingly in favor of modernization of the law of 1794. Of course, we are mindful of the fact that there is in the county a clear percentage of fine people of highest principle, good Christian people, who honestly regard attempts to alter the old law as something in the nature of a sacrilege.

However, in no part of the county, as was sufficiently demonstrated in the Sun-Telegraph postcard vote on the matter, do these worthy persons constitute anything like a majority. Earnest though they are, their number is few compared to those who wish a more liberal Sunday law. So, it is to the will of the few instead of the many that the six members of the Allegheny County delegation are bowing in consenting to be recorded against the move to bring an American Sunday to Pennsylvania.

Under the circumstances, it would be a fine gesture toward fairness were two of these six representatives to move for reconsideration of the Schwartz bill.

Desires to Be Useful

New Episcopal Dean Comes From Atlanta With Ideals To Make Him Welcome.

The Very Rev. Nathaniel Rue High Moor, just installed as Episcopal dean, should find here a warm welcome. He comes with a wish to be helpful. "I want to help," he said in an interview.

Dean Moor came here from Atlanta, where he was pastor of what is sometimes called "a fashionable church." From a recent resident of the Georgian metropolis we learn that, in addition to having been held in high regard there as an earnest, vigorous churchman, he also was generally esteemed as a "regular fellow."

To be voted "regular" implies a human quality. To desire to be helpful indicates a spirit of progressiveness that should fit in with the local aim of making Pittsburgh "A better, cleaner, more beautiful city," to quote a plank from the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph platform.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, May 6.—Nicholas Dondolis threads a sheen of romanticism into the passionately sordid Tenderloin crazy quilt. As Nick the Greek he specializes in wagering a fortune on the flip of a card or turn of the dice. He furthermore has the languor of beauty, a rather baffling arriere-pensee.

No wager is too big for him. He takes on all comers with a quick wry smile and is the only man who got the figurative goat of the late Arnold Rothstein. Rothstein matched coolness in high stakes with Nick several times and upon each occasion lost heavily.

Nick's home is where he pegs his hat. Legends are that most of his high stake cleanups are made in the West and that in New York he is always the heavy loser—the sucker. Like Richard Canfield with his collection of Whistlers, Nick has an esthetic flair.

He is a patron of the galleries and museums and is reputed an expert on Watteaus and Corots. His native city is Athens in Greece and he came from a high-nosed Grecian family of ancient lineage, wealthy in his own right with an allowance of more than $100,000 yearly.

He was graduated from a college in Greece and was on his way for a post-graduate course at Oxford when one of his whims turned him to America. That was some 20 years ago. He idled around the race tracks for a time, but this sort of wagering was too slow.

While a smart dresser, his habiliments are far from flashy. He wears no jewelry and his suits are sedate. The only touch of dandyism, outside of a glossy fixative on his hair, is in his patent leather shoes which he wears at all times. An accomplished linguist, he speaks French, German, Greek and English.

Making friends easily, but with no intimates, he is the pale and bland lone wolf, whose veins seem to run with the ichor of ghosts. No one knows how much he has won or lost. He has a shrug for such queries. But best information is that he is generally loser.

LINNAEUS' FAME

By Archibald Henderson

To the layman, the source of the fame of Linnaeus, the great naturalist, is difficult to detect. He named only about 4,000 species and ventured the belief that he had not named half of the species. Today we know and actually have the description of hundreds of thousands of species. Ray, who preceded Linnaeus, guessed there might be as many as 20,000 species of insects. Already, today, 250,000 species of insects have been noted and described; and a conservative estimate places the number at perhaps one-tenth of the total number of existing species. In the matter of animals, the additions to existent knowledge from year to year are truly astounding. For [illegible] half-century some 12,000 species, on the average, have been added yearly to the "Zoological Record." Far from falling, as we might expect, the average is actually rising!

Nor was Linnaeus, as botanist and biologist, by any means impeccable. His classifications went such a small part of the distance; they left such an enormous deal undone and in disorder. He made ludicrous blunders, such as classifying sloths with walruses. The secret of his success was enormous industry, indefatigable research, meticulous record, and above all, classification. He laid the foundations of a new science.

Carl von Linne, known to science and to the world by the Latin title Carolus Linnaeus, was born at Rashult in the Swedish province of Smaland, on May 23, 1707. He was the son of a poor clergyman, who planned to have Carl follow in his footsteps. But when the lad showed more interest in the earth than in heaven, more concern for nature than for theology, his father was so outdone that he was on the point of apprenticing him to a cobbler. Fortunately the schoolmaster had discerned genius in Carl, lent him books on botany, and arranged for him to go on with his education. Carl's father was an enthusiastic student of nature, and in his garden were many rare plants not found in any local collection. In this way, Carl early became imbued with a love of botany. After attending the school at Vexio, he attended in succession the universities of Lund and Upsala, at the latter hearing the lectures of the renowned botanist Ru[illegible]. [illegible]dition and zeal of the young student were so striking as to enlist others in his support. He actually had to wear shoes which he soled with bark. After making detailed studies of plants, especially as to the meaning of their sexes, he modestly applied for the post of gardener at the University of Upsala, but was rewarded instead with appointment as assistant-lecturer in botany, with entire direction of the botanical garden.

Linnaeus was launched forth upon a series of great works, which constitute the foundation of the modern science of botany. He traveled far and wide, had many correspondents, lectured on botany at the University of Upsala, became immensely famous. He set out upon a complete classification of plants and animal life. His methods and systems of classification have been of great service to botanists. With regard to animals, he grouped them into species, and the species into genera, the genera into orders, and the orders into sub-kingdoms. In 1761 he was ennobled, the first scientist in Sweden to be thus honored. All things considered, he was the greatest botanist in the history of science. He passed away at Upsala on January 10, 1778.

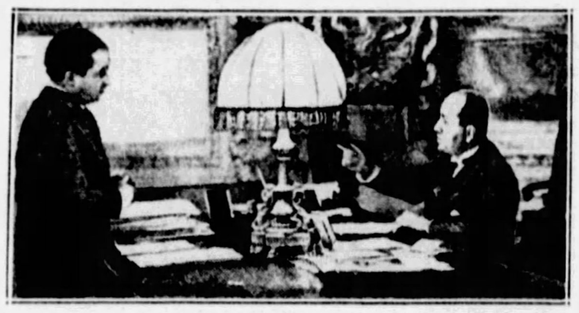
Wise Mussolini

You See Him in His Wisest Moment.



MUSSOLINI TELLS THE EDITOR.

The great Napoleon knew, as all intelligent men do, the power of a free press. He said that if he allowed the freedom of the press, his government wouldn't last six weeks. Therefore he did NOT allow it.

His government lasted longer than six weeks, but he wound up on the Island of St. Helena. Perhaps it would have been better for him had he allowed some young French editor to think over the situation and tell him and the public what was coming.

This interesting picture shows Mussolini, who has all the energy of Napoleon, who was also an Italian, plus certain kinds of intelligence that Napoleon lacked, directing the policies of Italian newspapers.

Mussolini was for many years a newspaperman, an extremely radical editor, one that some of his conservative financial admirers in Wall street today would have called "a rabid Bolshevist, dangerous as a mad dog."

But conditions change, and men with them.

When Mussolini was OUT and others were IN, he criticized power.

Now he is IN, the others are OUT, the power is his. And he regulates criticism firmly.

He does not say that newspapers must not express opinions, but warns them that it will not be healthy to express wrong opinions too energetically.

The other day, for instance, Pope Pius published in the Roman newspaper Osservatore Romano a letter severely reprimanding the Fascist government for its lack of obedience to the Church in certain directions.

Mussolini did not forbid the distribution of the paper or stop its publication. He simply arrested some newsboys that were shouting out brief extracts from the Pope's letter as they sold the paper. They were told they could continue selling the paper, but that they must not shout about it.

Above you see the Italian leader, more absolute in his power than any ruler on earth with the possible exception of Kemal Pasha in Turkey, regulating "freedom of the press" in his own way.

Mussolini has read the morning newspapers carefully, as he does every day, realizing that they are as important to him as the steam pressure to an engineer.

Having read the papers, Mussolini tells Senor Feretti what he likes and dislikes. Feretti tells the editors, and everything goes along nicely.

How long this will continue depends probably on the length of Mussolini's life. He has enemies, numerous and bitter. Italians pray that nothing will happen to him. They had their choice between Mussolini and anarchy at the end of the big war. With Mussolini they got order, [illegible] of a terrific energy in government that counteracted largely the evil, impoverishing effects of the war.

They hope he will live many years, as well they may.

It is always a complete surprise to a man when the spring romance, which began in just a little jolly or a little "con," ends in a jolly little contract.

In a love-affair, as in any other dramatic episode, everything depends upon making your "exit" at the most effective moment, before the ennui sets in.

There are times when a woman has so much trouble collecting the alimony that she almost wishes she were "dependent," again.

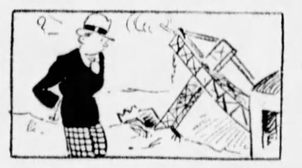
When you see a man ambling along, and stopping every now and then to watch the workers around a steam shovel, he is on his way to the office; when you see him rushing through the crowds and dashing for life in front of taxicabs, he is probably on his way to the golf links or the ball game.



Just when a man has finally adjusted his vision and reconciled his mind to his wife's new spring hat, she decides it is time to throw it away and get another one.

There is absolutely no way of disciplining a man in these days of feminine competition. Just as long as women continue to try to undersell one another, woman's stock in the love-and-marriage market will keep right on going down, until it reaches zero.
